Businesses bearing burden of city's delivery fee enforcement

■ Neither the city, merchants nor delivery companies are happy with the $60 a year license required for each truck, but solution is not immediately apparent.

By PAUL WOLF

NIelsen Bros. Market may find it worthwhile to pay a $60 special license for each truck driving in Carmel for Harris Ranch Beef.

And even if the market must absorb these costs, "the company just might come again," said Nielsen's owner Merv Sutton.

Then there is Bruno's Market, now looking for another distributor for its meat and poultry, since Foster Farms has decided not to come to Carmel.

Minor changes of city policies can have significant implications. The City of Carmel's decision this year to begin enforcing a 74-year-old special license fee has created headaches for local businesses, and city officials — aware they may have a mess on their hands — are eagerly seeking a compromise solution.

"We don't have an official approach to solving the

Proposed drug policy stirs ire of parents, students

By SCOTT BREARTON

IT WAS standing room only at a public forum designed to receive parental and community input on a new drug and alcohol policy proposed by the Carmel Unified School District.

"I thought I'd seen it all until I went to that meeting last night," said board member Gary Gray at a CUSD meeting the following night. "There were an incredible number of bright ideas presented."

But the forum, held Oct. 6 in the Carmel High School library, turned into an emotionally-charged attack on the proposed policy, which may be headed back to the drawing board.

One woman, who said she was "vehemently opposed" to the policy, wanted to know why the 24-hour "non-use contract" — a policy provision pertaining to participation in extracurricular activities — wasn't written to include all students.

"If I had my way, it would include everybody," responded CHS Principal Marie Ishida. "But according to our lawyer, going to school is a right, not a privilege. In the court system, co-curricular activities are considered a privilege and not a right."

Another parent argued that in cases where participation in extracurricular activities is required for college admission, a 24-hour non-use contract would amount to "nothing short of educational blackmail."

"The school is trying to force people — no matter how anti-drug or anti-alcohol they are — into agreeing to something that nobody feels is constitutionally correct."

Effort broadens in all-out search for Polly Klaas

By JOHN DETRO

CARMEL WRITER Joe Klaas this week gave Pine Cone readers the opportunity to look far inside the Petaluma-based search for his abducted granddaughter — 12-year-old Polly Klaas.

Maybe it's because this is their hometown newspaper. Joe was joined by his daughter Elizabeth, executive at a Carmel art gallery, in revealing points which have not been reported by other media.

Polly was stolen from her modest Petaluma home on the night of Oct. 1 by a bearded man who threatened her and two other schoolgirls (slumber party guests) with a knife. Polly's mother was asleep elsewhere in the house.

CHS senior enjoys giving – back to the community

By SCOTT BREARTON

BRITTANY STRUVE enjoys helping people. This attribute can perhaps be illustrated best in her recent distinction for having logged nearly 400 hours of volunteer community service, more than any other senior at Carmel High School. In fact, Struve has accumulated more than twice as many hours as the next highest student.

"By virtue of Brittany Struve's community service hours, it is clear to us that she personifies that important community spirit that is at the heart of Carmel," said Maggie Hardy, chairperson of Carmel Celebrates Community.

With this distinction, Hardy said Struve will become the first person known as the "Spirit of Carmel," someone who "exemplifies the true spirit of the community." She will ride in a specially marked car in the city's annual Halloween and birthday parade and will later receive a special plaque for her efforts.

"The Spirit of Carmel personifies the positive community spirit that exists in our town," said Hardy. "This was a committee effort to create a new tradition in Carmel."

Hardy said beginning this year, the city will honor the CHS senior who has accumulated the most community service hours.

But why would a 17-year-old be willing to give up so much of her free time without any financial incentive?

"I guess it's just part of my nature," Struve said. "I love to give. It makes me feel good about myself to help other people."

According to Jack Ellena, CHS community service learning coordinator, Struve has become a model for what the program stands for.

"The things that she's done involve very high-quality contact hours with people," said Ellena. "She's a very delightful and personable young lady and I think her future is definitely in working with people."

In her two and one-half years as a volunteer for the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula, Struve put in 355 hours in the hospital's nursery. While she said the environment was generally positive, she noted there were moments that were emotionally difficult for her.

"Sometimes you see a premature baby and you know that it's from drug use," Struve said. "It's kind of a reality that hits."

"The drug or crack babies are very different from normal babies," she added. "They weigh much less and they're very jittery. It's sad that they don't have an equal chance."

During the summer of 1992, Struve worked 23 hours as a junior guide for the Monterey Bay Aquarium, fielding questions from visitors about the exhibits.

Struve is also a member of the National Charity League, and has volunteered time for the SPCA, Meals on Wheels, Beacon House and Hospice of Monterey County.

Also works for money

As if she wasn't busy enough, Struve also holds down a couple regular jobs – for money. She will be finishing with her summer job as a lifeguard and swimming instructor at the end of this month, and has already landed another job as a waitress at a Carmel

Briefly Speaking

La Playa Hotel, Union ratify pact

WORKERS AT Carmel's La Playa Hotel have ratified a new five-year contract "by a 95 percent margin," Secretary-Treasurer Leonard O'Neill of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees Union (Local 483) announced Friday, Oct. 8.

The pact emerged following months of negotiations and a rare sight in Carmel — picket signs in front of La Playa. The workers had been without a contract since July 31.

The agreement calls for pay hikes 18 percent (non-tipped workers) and 29 cents per hour for "wait, bus and bellpersons," O'Neill says. Also gained were improved medical insurance coverage, retroactive pay back to Aug. 1, one additional paid holiday and other benefits.

Prop. 174 debate slated in Carmel

PROPOSITION 174, the Parental Choice in Education Amendment, will be the topic of a public forum to be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 20, at Carpenter Hall in Sunset Center.

The League of Women Voters of the Monterey Peninsula is sponsoring the forum, along with a host of other organizations.

LWV to focus on ballot measures

THE LEAGUE of Women Voters will hold its monthly meeting from noon to 1:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 14 at the Unitarian Universalist Church of the Monterey Peninsula.

The meeting will include discussion of the league's positions on California ballot measures for the forthcoming Nov. 2 election.

The public is invited to attend. Lunch is $5 or free for attendees who bring a casserole for eight.

The Unitarian Church is located at 490 Aguajito Road in Monterey. Additional information can be obtained by calling the League of Women Voters at 648-VOTE.

CV Manor celebrates anniversary

THE CARMEL Valley Manor will celebrate its 30th anniversary at 7 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 14, at 8545 Carmel Valley Road, Carmel Valley.

The celebration will be highlighted with a "Gay '30s" costume party featuring entertainment by the manor's residents. Further information is available by calling 649-4499 or 624-1281.

'Wild' celebration to benefit SPCA

THE FRIENDS of Monterey County Wildlife is sponsoring "A 'Wild' Celebration" from 3 to 6 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 17, at the Holman Ranch in Carmel Valley.

There will be a silent auction, art exhibit, great horned owl release, food, wine and music. The cost is $25, and all of the proceeds benefit the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA) Wildlife Rescue and Rehabilitation Center.

Further information is available by calling 659-2049.

Sheriff's Council slates barbecue

THE MONTEREY COUNTY Sheriff's Advisory Council will hold its annual barbecue from noon to 4 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 16, at the Quail Meadows' Lake in Carmel Valley.

The sheriff's department will present a display of its equipment, provide demonstrations and other attractions, and there will be a live auction.

Further information is available by calling 375-2727.

CV Racquet Club hits milestone

THE CARMEL Valley Racquet Club will celebrate its 25th anniversary Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 19 and 20.

The club opened in 1968 with about 200 new members.

Assembly candidates Patton, McPherson, clash on economy

■ Republican is an advocate of making California more business-friendly, while Democrat says environmental preservation underlies long-term prosperity.

By PAUL WOLF

ONE IS a political neophyte, whose themes are reform, simplification and a friendlier climate for business.

The other is a veteran politician — A 19-year Santa Cruz County supervisor — who argues that vigilant environmental protection is "the economic basis for the future."

When voters in the 27th State Assembly District step into the polls to choose a new representative, they will choose between two candidates — Bruce McPherson and Gary Patton — with strikingly different approaches and emphases.

Yet they would be surprised to know they share at least some common ground.

McPherson, the Republican, whose background is newspapers not politics, stresses giving the economy a chance to grow by cutting red tape and redundant regulation.

"I don't want to imply that business always knows best and it should do whatever it wants," McPherson said in a Carmel Pine Cone interview. "Nor am I saying we do not need some regulations. But what I have seen is a system that doesn't work."

McPherson, 49, is former editor of The Santa Cruz Sentinel. Patton, also 49, is a Democrat, an established environmentalist and member of the Santa Cruz Board of Supervisors since 1974.

Environmental protection, he said, ensures tourism, the protection of agricultural land and prosperity where it counts most — the long term.

He bristles at the contention that McPherson is the best man, and the Republicans the best party, to help streamline government.

Credibility question?

Patton argues that he has the experience "making government work," giving him "more credibility" than a writer of editorials on the goals of reforming state government.

Assembly forum slated for Oct. 21 in Carmel

THE FOUR candidates running for the 27th Assembly District will participate in a forum at 4 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 21 in the Vista Lobos Meeting Room on Junipero and Third in Carmel.

The forum is co-sponsored by The Carmel Pine Cone and the Carmel Residents Association. This will be the only Assembly candidates' forum to be held in Carmel prior to election day, which is Tuesday, Nov. 2.

The candidates scheduled to appear include:

- Bruce McPherson, Republican
  - Gary Patton, Democrat
  - Susanne Espinoza, Peace and Freedom Party
  - Jerome McCready, American Independent
- Doug Thompson, Pine Cone managing editor, and Jim Holliday of the CRA will moderate the forum.

Forum organizers stress the event is scheduled to begin at 4 p.m. sharp because the candidates have additional commitments later that evening.

The forum is free to the public.

Reform, Patton said, should begin with a "comprehensive review" of all the agencies and channels of review. A key goal, he said, should be to develop a "unified," rather than "layered," approach to the process.

Before people submit their requests, they should have a basic idea of whether development projects would be possible or not, based on objective criteria.

The accusations are flung from either side. To Patton, McPherson would loosen regulation beyond what is desirable. "He is," said Patton, "not to be trusted with the environment and will make decisions for the short term gain to the detriment of the long term."

But to McPherson, "Gary Patton has done very little to encourage any economic development or job creation. He's trying to sell himself off as pro-business,

Caltrans: Worthy Highway 1 widening plan may not exist, but work continues

By PAUL WOLF

WITH DEADLINES this month and in November, a key California Department of Transportation official expressed skepticism that Caltrans can produce a "safe and cost-effective" Highway 1 widening plan.

Nevertheless, Gregg Albright, project coordinator for the now sidelined Hatton Canyon freeway proposal, explained, "We are working as hard as possible."

Arguably, Caltrans may have a vested interest in failing its mission. But no widening proposal could also mean no project at all — and no one supports that.

The ultimate decision may arrive next month, in a meeting of the California Transportation Commission (CTC), which controls the purse strings.

Meanwhile, Caltrans supports the Hatton Canyon freeway, while county transportation officials support widening.

Complex history

Caltrans has been unhappily locked into designing widening plans under the direction of the CTC, which last month rejected the freeway in support of widening, at least in concept.

On Sept. 8, the CTC, after rejecting Hatton Canyon, also tossed out the first widening scheme it has reviewed — a plan called "4/6."

The CTC decided failed to meet the "safe and cost-effective" criteria. Caltrans had lobbied against 4/6.

In addition, the CTC gave Caltrans and the Transportation Agency for Monterey County (TAMC) 60 days to produce a satisfactory design.

When the 17-member TAMC meets Oct. 27, Caltrans representatives are expected to do one of two things: Present a revised Highway 1 widening plan, or argue no such safe and cost-effective proposal exists.

"We have to determine whether we can meet the CTC's requirements for 'safe and cost-effective,'" said Albright. "But I have to tell you that, as of right now, we have not met them. But we are hoping we can put something together."

It is likely that Caltrans and TAMC will need to be of one mind if they are going to secure approval from the CTC for a revised widening plan by the CTC's mid-

Sierra Club to sponsor Oct. 19 forum on Highway 1 widening

THE VENTANA Chapter of the Sierra Club will stage a public forum on Tuesday, Oct. 19 at Sunset Center Auditorium to discuss Highway 1 widening alternatives.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. and conclude at 10 p.m.

Expected to appear are representatives from the California Department of Transportation, 5th District Monterey County Supervisor Sam Karas, Citizens for Hatton Canyon, the Hatton Canyon Coalition and various city and county officials.

Plans for different widening proposals will be on hand for public viewing.

Rec commissioners hope to spruce up Vista Lobos home

By PAUL WOLF

RESPONDING TO the Carmel City Council's renewed commitment to keep the recreation department alive in years to come, recreation commissioners declared that the Vista Lobos building would remain the preferred site of programs.

"I can see no better place than right here," said Recreation Commissioner Bob D'Isidoro, at a commission meeting Saturday, Oct. 9.

"If we are going to have a permanent recreation department, this is ideal — from the standpoint of administration and programs."

Meanwhile, at the Oct. 9 meeting, commissioners endorsed, in concept, plans for an extensive, volunteer-driven renovation of Vista Lobos.

The building — located between Junipero Avenue and Torres Street at 3rd Avenue, adjoining the municipal parking — makes poor use of space. Also, it lacks insulation, kitchen facilities and handicap-access.

Its rustic characteristics, which would be preserved, recall the buildings former warehouse use.

Thodos' plans approved

A renovation task force has been established, and the group's focus has been a set of plans donated by Carmel architect John Thodos, to which the commission gave conceptual approval.

Much of the work slated would bring the building up to code and the dictates the Americans with Disabilities Act, which requires handicap access.

In addition, commissioners hope to find another place for the historic engine the fire department is keeping in Vista Lobos' current storage area.

When the Carmel City Council met in a retreat Saturday, Oct. 2, members deemed that a secure home for the recreation department was a top priority. To some members, there seemed no point in ensuring survival while not providing decent accommodations.

For two year running, the department was proposed to be dissolved, but it was saved both times in 11th hour council votes following much public protest.

In a Pine Cone telephone interview after the recreation commission meeting, Ken White reiterated his commitment to the department.

"It is either in or out," he explained. "We (the council) must bring the department back onto a solid footing, both budgetarily and in terms of facilities."

Although they are not expected to call on city funds, the plans to improve Vista Lobos will be subject to planning commission and city council review.

Red Lion roars again

THE HIGHLAND Bagpipers got The Red Lion Tavern's downtown Carmel parade, celebrating its grand reopening, off to a classy start Sunday, Oct. 10.

The parade, which began at 4 p.m., started at the former location of The Red Lion (on San Carlos between Ocean and Seventh) and ended at its new site — the former home of Bud's Pub on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth streets.

Dozens of people — included Bud Allen himself — could be seen marching behind the parade contingent.

The celebration included the ceremonial installation of the Scottish Caber in the new Red Lion.

P.O. improvements: Sounds nice, but who will pay?

By PAUL WOLF

A SMATTERING of Carmel residents had mainly praise for at least one of the plans to improve the public area next to the Carmel Post Office.

But a question lingered as members of the Post Office Improvement Task Force concluded a public forum Oct. 12 at the Vista Lobos meeting room.

It was, simply, "Where is the $25,000 going to come from?"

"That is up to the city council; we didn't concern ourselves with that," said Steve Brooks, who co-chairs the task force.

The $25,000 is the estimated amount it would cost for the proposal known as "Option 1A," the deluxe choice of three alternatives, and the one that generated the most interest Tuesday evening.

"Option 2," the least expensive, would cost about $10,000, according to the task force.

1A would, for starters, widen the 5th Avenue sidewalk next to the post office by seven feet, create level ground at the west entrance for 24-hour handicap access, and add outdoor seating and landscaping.

Moreover, improvements would be made to the post office facade, and parking would be reconfigured with both safety and patron-convenience in mind. It appears there would be no net loss of spaces.

The modest "Option 2" extends the sidewalk only 2.5 feet. It does less to develop the post office area as a comfortable community meeting spot.

"I just wanted to compliment the committee — I think 1A is attractive," said resident David Dilworth, whose sentiments were echoed by a number of others.

Nevertheless, there were serious concerns about traffic, parking and possibly moving the location of the mail drop-off locations.

Many of these concerns will need to be addressed by Carmel Public Works Director Jim Cullum, who serves on the task force.

Just as a shortage of funds could stall or derail the project, so could problems with safety, circulation and parking.

The beginnings

A post office plaza concept began as the brainchild of the visionary Carmel 2016 Committee. It originally conceived of a town square that would block off the southern half of 5th Avenue.

That initial concept was not well-received by many city officials and members of the public, although the Carmel City Council saw merit in creating a task force. The special-purpose group has met a dozen times and produced three plans.

"I quickly became convinced that a plaza was too much — because we have a traffic problem already and that would just make it worse," said Vance Frasier, who co-chairs the task force with Brooks.

Resident Jim Holliday made an impassioned plea for why the community should move forward with the plans, despite the financial uncertainties.

"This represents long-range planning, since this (proposal) does not have to go into effect in 1994.

"Twenty-five thousand dollars is not a lot of money for a major project, which can be done in phases."

Businesses bearing burden of fees

problem yet," Councilwoman Barbara Brooks told The Carmel Pine Cone. "But we may need to find another way to bring in this money."

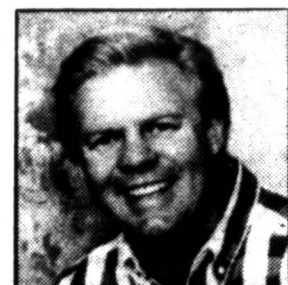

With or without modification, the delivery trucks charge is liable to stay.

"We are simply beginning to enforce a very old ordinance that some people have been sliding by on," said Mayor

Ken White, defending the new city policy to enforce the fee. "These fees have been in effect all along; it's just that some have chosen to disregard them."

City Administrator Jere Kersnar has budgeted $15,700 for Fiscal Year 1993-94 to result from a $60 annual license on each delivery truck that does business in Carmel.

ACT endorses Yee Steck for school board seat

By SCOTT BREARTON

THE ASSOCIATION of Carmel Teachers has endorsed Annette Yee Steck for the two-year seat on the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education.

The announcement came late last week, after Yee Steck received a letter from ACT President Kay Pallastrini informing her of the organization's decision.

"This will be a real plus for me," said Yee Steck. "It's really nice to get that endorsement."

Pallastrini said the ACT chose to endorse Yee Steck because of her work with other school districts and her ability to work with people.

"We really like her expertise, because her job is working as a financial consultant with L.A. County Unified School District," Pallastrini said. "We're having some budget problems and we thought she would be able to help with that."

"We also thought she was open to new ideas," added Pallastrini. "We really like her willingness to listen and see things in other ways. The other candidates seemed to have a lot of preconceived ideas about they would do."

According to Yee Steck, an ACT spokesperson indicated the organization would circulate letters on her behalf and offered financial help with her campaign. While she said she was undecided about whether to accept campaign contributions from the ACT, she called it "a wonderful, generous offer."

Yee Steck, who works out of her home, said she is in an ideal position to help with financial problems in the district. As an investment banker specializing in public finance, she serves as a financial advisor to 94 different school districts in Los Angeles County.

Yee Steck said she has visited every school site in the district except Captain Cooper Elementary School in Big Sur, which she expects to do this week.

Yee Steck said she was impressed with the curriculum offered at all the schools, but noted that facilities needs are an ongoing problem.

"It's interesting to learn more about the schools," she said. "I've been trying to get out there and get as informed as possible and do my homework."

Yee Steck, 31, has lived in the Carmel area for the last three years. She has a three-year-old son enrolled at the Carmel Child Development Center.

"The most important thing to me is the children in the classroom, and making sure their education is kept as the most important goal of the district."

The ACT has also endorsed incumbent board members Frank Pinney and Dan Hightower, who are running unopposed for four-year terms.

The organization conducted interviews with all candidates for the two-year seat Saturday, Oct. 2. The eight-person interview panel included Pallastrini, vice-president Patty Armstrong and ACT representatives from each school. Imogene Spicer, political action chairman, arranged the interviews.

Meanwhile, Nancy Dice announced Tuesday she was withdrawing from the school board race.

"I am withdrawing in favor of Annette Yee Steck," Dice said. "I'm endorsing her. I'm hoping everyone that supported me supports her."

Dice said when she made the decision to run for a seat on the school board, she didn't know any of the other candidates. But she said as the race progressed, she became acquainted with Yee Steck and liked what she saw.

"She's got the financial expertise we desperately need in this district," Dice noted. "Philosophically, I agree with her on everything we've talked about."

The three remaining candidates for the two-year seat are Ray Burch, Jim Kistenmacher and Yee Steck.

Insurance consultant hired with eye on curbing health care costs

By SCOTT BREARTON

IN AN effort to help control rising health insurance costs, Carmel Unified School District board members approved a recommendation to retain the services of Keenan and Associates, a large health insurance consulting firm which specializes in school employee coverage.

At a meeting Oct. 7, board members Gary Gray, Dan Hightower and Patricia Herro approved a CUSD review team recommendation to hire the Campbell-based firm. Although President Frank Pinney and board member Patricia Condren were not present, the board had a quorum.

"We want to know where our money is going," said Hightower, who noted Keenan and Associates represents more school employees than any other health care consultant in the state.

During the past year, the district allocated more than $1.5 million for health insurance costs, according to a report issued last July.

CUSD Superintendent Vance Baldwin said the district review team prepared a proposal request which was sent out to 11 firms, including both local and large companies. He said the team received proposals from 10 companies, and narrowed the field to five on Oct. 1.

After discussing the merits of each firm's presentation and gathering input from classified employees and the Association of Carmel Teachers, the review team settled on Keenan and Associates.

On Tuesday, Baldwin said the firm had not yet been notified of the board's decision.

Hightower, who described the interview process as fair, called Keenan and Associates "the best company to meet all of our needs."

Baldwin cited four characteristics the review team was looking for during the interview process: the range of services offered, access to additional services, fees and communication.

When Gray asked if the preferred firm was "at least optimistic" about being able to save the district money on its health insurance premiums, Baldwin replied, "I think we were sold that they can do that (without sacrificing employee benefits)."

Not without a price

But the decision didn't come down without a price. In this case, it will be the loss of Jackson Booth of JRB Insurance Services, a 21-year veteran who has handled CUSD's insurance needs for about three years, according to Baldwin.

"I think it's a matter of needing to

Student challenges CUSD employees to sign 'non-use contract'

DRUG POLICY from page 1

Does the proposed policy go too far in usurping parents' responsibilities while giving too much power to the school district? Many parents agreed it did.

As one woman commented: "It seems like they're telling parents, 'We don't trust you to take care of your kids and know what they're up to. We're going to take over.'"

'The wrong approach'

"If that's the way this school works, then let's go live in Nazi Germany. It smacks of Big Brother, it really does. It's based on mistrust, an assumption that all students are suspect unless they sign this contract. I think that's really the wrong approach to get the kind of behavior we want from our kids."

"It's not a school issue," she continued. "The schools aren't law enforcement agencies. They're educators, not regulators."

"We, as parents, need to instill in our kids a sense of good judgement. And that's not up to you... that's up to us."

Another parent agreed: "Why are we asking our kids to do stuff we didn't do ourselves."

"If we want our children to be drug- and alcohol-free and good citizens, we have to be good role models. That's where it starts."

CHS Associated Student Body Representative Drew Teti recently initiated a campus petition drive, collecting more than 400 signatures from students opposed to the new drug and alcohol policy.

"I find it insulting," Teti said. "I feel it's antithetical to everything that a school should do. It encourages lying among students."

Teti said one of the rationales behind the 24-hour non-use contract has been that students involved in athletics, cheerleading, student government and other extra-curricular activities serve as role models for other students. Teti argued that parents and teachers, who also serve as role models, should be subject to the same policy provision.

"Would all district employees likewise sign a policy like this?" Teti asked. "If I caught one of them drinking, could they be suspended for two weeks without pay?"

Fred Herro, a local attorney and husband of CUSD board member Patricia Herro, said he found the whole nature of the policy coercive: "It's either take it or leave it. You have no choice if you want to participate."

Fred Herro was also critical of that portion of the policy which discusses how allegations of drug use would be addressed by administrators.

Herro argued there are no specific guidelines governing the type of allegations that would warrant being looked at by an "advisory panel."

Erosion of trust

Many speakers argued that students often confide in teachers and coaches, and the new policy would lead to an erosion of that trust.

Local parent Doug Meador held the floor for nearly 15 minutes as he read from a four-page prepared statement which blasted the district's proposed drug policy.

"This policy is one of retribution and is designed only to punish to Draconian levels," Meador said. "Why would any child reach out for help, given your policy? Yet, that very 'reach for help' is what we wish - and what they must do in order to be rescued. The proposed policy works against the goal of aiding children..."

"Your policy," Meador continued, "establishes a 'referral by friends' which results in an 'advisory panel' to investigate and determine the truth of the allegations."

Likening this self-referral process to "The Inquisition, Red Pioneers and the Hitler Youth," Meador said the policy would deny students due process, the right to face their accuser and the right to counsel.

"A policy such as this would drive children away from help, not toward it," Meador concluded. "In operation it is against everything taught in your own civics classes. It paints the school (administrators) as hypocrites - teach one thing, do another. It is probably illegal. It is wrong."

CHS senior James Genone said administrators should put more emphasis on providing drug education to students, rather than "punishment after the fact."

Another student accused the district of targeting those students "who are trying to do something good."

'Genuine concern for kids'

But CUSD Superintendent Vance Baldwin defended the goals of the policy's authors: "I think it is absurd to think or suggest that the motivation for this policy was born out of anything than a genuine concern for kids."

Near the end of the forum, a student brought a bit of logic into the debate, much to the amusement of those in attendance.

"If it's already against the law (for minors to use drugs and alcohol), what good is it to create more regulations?"

Regardless of motive, it was clear parents and students had reservations about the proposed policy and its intended purpose.

Grumblings of discontent

But there were yet more grumblings of discontent: Why should it take something that angers parents to get them involved in the decision-making process of the school district? What if all these intellectuals were put to a more positive use?

CHS Secretary Jean Harnish agreed: "Don't just criticize, get involved!"

The revised policy, which was first brought before the CUSD Board of Education in May 1992, will be presented again for first reading at a public meeting Thursday, Oct. 21, in the Carmel Middle School library.

But according to Marvin Biasotti, director of pupil services and co-author of the policy, the version that will come before the board next week will not include the portion pertaining to participation in co-curricular activities.

Biasotti said Wednesday the district subcommittee will work to revise that portion of the policy, based on input presented at the Oct. 6 forum.

"We don't want to bring that portion of the policy forward at this point," Biasotti said.

"There are too many unresolved issues."

The board is expected to take action on the remainder of the policy at a CUSD board meeting Nov. 10.

Ever wonder why other walking shoes leave your feet hot and sweaty, tired and sore?

Very simple. They're not made like Mephisto.

Many other walking shoes, you see, use synthetic materials, and synthetics retain heat, moisture and odors.

Mephistos, on the other hand, are all-natural. They're made of vegetable dyed full-grain leathers, pure latex, cork and rubber. Only leather "breathes" to assure maximum foot comfort. Combined with other natural materials, you'll feel like you're walking on feathers.

And other walking shoes certainly aren't manufactured like Mephisto, by hand, one at a time, in the matchless European tradition.

It's no wonder Mephisto is the most popular walking shoe on earth. It's the natural selection.

Come inside to our outdoor patio—no carpeting here to hide "the true feeling" of the shoe!

Phoenicians' 'Octopus' grabs Golden Shovel Award

PHOTOS/JEAN THOMPSON

THE PHOENICIANS exult when the judges of the 33rd annual Great Sand Castle Contest at Carmel Beach announce they are the recipients of this year's Grand Sand Award. Their entry was "Phantom of the Octopus."

AFTER MORE than six-and-one-half hours of labor — from 7 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. — and enduring the suspense of The Golden Shovel pronouncement, The Phoenicians take a moment to relax amidst their prize-winning "Phantom of the Octopus."

GRAND SAND Marshal Ken Jenvey makes it official as he hoists The Golden Shovel in the direction of The Phoenicians. Jere Kersnar (center), Carmel's city administrator, served as one of the judges.

FRED DAMBERGER of the Berkeley Cafe Rats puts the finishing touches on his team's entry. The Cafe Rats built a series of sand castles to match the titles of songs — Damberger, for example, is working on "Hotel California."

THIS YEAR'S theme was "Songs in the Sand," and Grand Marshal Jenvey prepares to hand over the "Theme Award" to The Sandcrabs for their entry, "Mr. Sandman Bring Me A Dream." To the right of Jenvey is Carmel City Councilwoman Barbara Brooks, a judge in the contest. (See page 1 for a photo of the theme award winner.)

Not all Sand Castles are created on beach as new Carmel store attests

By SUSAN BECK

THE GOAL — encourage children to become creative thinkers. The method — a new toy store called Sand Castles by-the-Sea (Toys That Build Dreams).

Delana Pierce and Suzanne Webb, owners of Sand Castles, opened the toy store in Carmel to promote an educational system that focuses on children's abilities to become creative thinkers.

Pierce and Webb both previously worked at The Nut Shell, a toy store owned and operated by the Waldorf School of the Monterey Peninsula.

Pierce is a founding member of the Waldorf School, which opened in 1986.

The educational emphasis at the Waldorf School is based on the philosophy of Rudolf Steiner, who in 1921 started the first school of its kind in Stuttgart, Germany.

"The basic idea is to draw education forth, rather than stuffing it in," said Pierce, who lives in Carmel Valley. "Develop ideas rather than trying to fit children into a mold."

Recently, it became clear that it was time to expand The Nut Shell located in The Barnyard Mall in Carmel, said Pierce. But the Waldorf School administrators decided instead to close the shop because they were in the business of education, not retail.

Grand opening

Pierce and Webb thought differently. They decided to open an even larger toy store next door to The Nut Shell.

The grand opening of Sand Castles was held Sunday, Oct. 10, the same day Carmel's annual Great Sand Castle Contest was going strong at Carmel Beach.

All of the toys at Sand Castles are reflective of the Waldorf School theory, said Pierce. "It's the only shop of its kind south of San Francisco."

The criteria for determining which toy to buy is based on whether it is an

Monterey Bay gets taste of Kim's murals

who owns Bruno's with her husband Alex, called him up on a Sunday after reading an article about him in The Monterey County Herald earlier that morning.

"He came to see me the next day," said Sanchez. "He saw the vegetable and fruit stands and sweet-talked me into painting a mural throughout the store. He's a wonderful man and I thought, let's go for it."

Kim was raised in Seoul, South Korea, and started painting when he was six years old.

"I won all of the art contests in school," said Kim.

When he was a young man, the Korean Marine Corps offered Kim an art education, which was to take two and a half year. Because his artwork was so detailed, Kim was charged with painting in-depth graphics of top-secret military equipment for high officials. He also was summoned by the military to produce paintings for Korean dignitaries and visiting American military officers.

"They kept a hold on me for 16 years," said Kim, who lives in Marina with his wife and two children.

He arrived in the U. S. 16 years ago after retiring from the military, and came directly to the Monterey Peninsula because his brother lives here.

Kim's goal was to continue painting. However, it was not meant to be.

When Kim first arrived in 1977, he took one of his large canvas paintings to an art gallery in Carmel. The gallery's owner offered to buy it for $600. Kim asked why the other paintings in the gallery, which were much smaller, were priced in the thousands. She told him his paintings would not sell as well because no one knew who he was.

"It made me very sad," said Kim. "I became depressed. I wanted to destroy the picture. I stopped painting."

Instead, he went to work for a flower nursery in Salinas, washed dishes at the Pacheco Club in Monterey, where one of his paintings is located, and finally ended up working as a cook for the next 10 years at La Boheme Restaurant in Carmel.

Two years ago, Kim decided to take up sign painting. He didn't make a lot of money but it was more than he was making at La Boheme. The venture didn't pan out. So he had it in his mind to return to Korea against the wishes of his wife and children.

But, fortunately, recalled Kim, just before he was going to leave, a friend told him to go to Moss Landing to see a wall mural that was terrible.

"I talked with the guy who owned the building and he offered me $700 to cover up the old mural with a new one," recalled Kim. "He liked my work so much he paid me to do the entire building."

That job led to many more. He's painted murals on the walls of the French Bakery in Monterey, Lee's Garden Restaurant in Marina, the lobby of Arrow Lettuce Co. in Salinas, the Moss Landing Cafe and the Moss Landing Oyster Bar.

Several people have called to consult with Kim about future murals including a woman from San Francisco. But he's not thinking about the future so much as he's thinking about his work at Bruno's.

So far, his mural is a panoramic representation of the Odello artichoke fields on around to the mountain range leading out to Carmel Valley's vineyards and then sweeping back to the Pacific Ocean and Point Lobos.

Sanchez remarked that everyone who shops at Bruno's compliments Kim on his work. Mural and canvas painters have called him a master, she added. "One artist said she could not believe that he painted the clouds in a few days. It would have taken her months to do the same thing."

Kim's mural is vibrant and full of the gray-blue skies that prevail on the Monterey Peninsula. He never relies on a sketch or photo while painting.

"It's in my head," said Kim. "I don't want to think about too many things. I just start painting."

Wall murals are difficult at best, but Kim has taken a liking to the medium. However, he prefers canvas paintings and would some day like to have his work on display in a gallery. But he's not complaining about the way his life is going.

"I'm very happy with my new jobs," said Kim. "It's a little late, but for the first time in years, I'm excited to go to work."

'Easier to give driver a ticket than go after company'

Some companies have been paying voluntarily. The fee was not enforced, even though the original delivery fee ordinance dates back to 1919 — when two-horse vehicles paid more than one-horse.

Business people and truck drivers now complain, for starters, that the fee is connected to the driver, not the company.

"I guess it's easier to give a driver a ticket than to go after a company, with all of their lawyers and so on," said Frank Russell, a driver with the Seaside-based Sparolini Distributing Co. "I think the city understands this system is not fair."

And so any company with a fleet of seven trucks — each making only occasional trips to Carmel — now would need seven special licenses for each driver.

It's easier in many cases for delivery companies and their drivers to say, "Forget Carmel."

"This issue is very severe," said Toni Jepson, executive director of the Carmel Business Association. "Businesses rely on a lot of specialty items, so this will affect the uniqueness of Carmel."

Jepson said the delivery fees will affect every kind of business in Carmel that relies on shipped goods and food.

Kersnar and others said the solution may lie in directing the licenses at the company and not the driver. But will that reduce the revenue source?

"All I can say for now is that we have had a lot of complaints and we are looking into what other cities are doing," said Kersnar. "At a certain point, I will return to the city council (with a proposal)."

The fee had not been enforced, according to Kersnar, because the fee amount was based on the weight of the truck in question — a difficult measure to work with.

Notices now, citations later

So far, no citations have been issued to drivers without licenses, but notices have been circulated. Enforcement is supposed to begin Oct. 15.

"It's affected us a great deal," said Sutton, noting that Nielsen's has some 240 truck deliveries per month.

"Several companies I can think of have already been looking for an excuse not to deliver in Carmel," he noted.

The market already shells out nearly $3,000 a year for the regular business license. "I thought that this was supposed to cover it," Sutton commented.

When the trucks refuse to pay, businesses have two choices, Sutton explained. They can absorb the cost of the special licenses themselves, or they can increase prices for the consumer.

Sutton said there is an irony, if his theory holds up: The money raised in new revenues may be less than the sales tax lost. "In my opinion," he said, "the city is cutting its own throat."

Accent is on 'creative toys'

open-ended toy that stimulates creative play and nurtures the imagination, said Pierce.

"We look for toys that offer active rather than passive play. Most of the toys are hand-made utilizing wood and natural fibers. If we give our children disposable toys, what are we teaching them?" asked Pierce.

Children don't get acknowledged or challenged as much as they should in school, she added. "As parents, we need to fill that need. We are the teachers."

Pierce's interest in creative toys began when she got tired of buying her daughter toys, which were always breaking. At the same time, she became aware of the Waldorf School's educational approach. "It fit in perfectly with what I had in mind," said Pierce.

Living Waldorf

Webb, on the other hand, said she always wanted her son to go to a Waldorf School, but there wasn't one where she lived in the Midwest.

When she arrived in Carmel, her son had already grown up. However, when the opportunity to work at The Nut Shell came along, she said, "I felt at home."

Webb had been living the Waldorf life without even knowing it. She recalled even though she tried to keep play weapons out of the picture, her son still went through his GI Joe stage. But, she said, when he left for college, "all he asked me to save were his wooden toys."

All of us have a child inside, said Webb. "If you can keep your child alive — you will always stay young."

Judging from the positive response to Sand Castles, both Webb and Pierce believe old-fashioned, imaginative toys are coming back in favor again.

"Children are fascinated with situations that hold endless possibilities," said Pierce. "Even though we have a lot of different toys at home — the ones that endure are the creative toys."

Joe Klaas — 'Problem now is to keep this from turning into a circus'

So far, law enforcement agencies — FBI, police, sheriff's office — have checked out some 2,000 tips. Polly's whereabouts remained a mystery Wednesday.

Speaking by telephone from the Polly Klaas Search and Rescue Control Center, Joe said: "The problem now is to keep this from turning into a circus. Celebrities are offering anonymous contributions (to the reward fund) that would go well over a million bucks. But we're putting on a cap — the $200,000 from (film actress) Winona (Ryder) for information leading to Polly's safe return."

The young star's gesture came Saturday. She noted that she attended public school in Petaluma and started acting on the same junior high stage that drew Polly. The money will be handled by the City of Petaluma.

"This woman (Ryder) is marvelous," Joe said. "And what an incredible identification she has with Polly."

In a separate phone conversation, Polly's Aunt Elizabeth said FBI agents on the scene "tell us they're very hopeful that Polly is alive and well and will be found. These people don't say things just to bolster one's spirits. They don't say anything they don't mean."

Asked about those comments, Joe said: "Yes, the FBI expresses optimism. They have compiled a profile of this guy (the kidnapper) and they don't think he will harm her."

Generally, Joe said, lawmen and volunteers have created for Polly "the biggest kidnapper response ever. In terms of information flow, contributions and new search techniques, there has never been an effort like this."

For example, Joe went on, inmates of the state prison system have joined the search team.

"The idea came from a local (Petaluma area) probation officer who's a volunteer," Joe said. "Corrections officials agreed. The composite drawing (of the kidnapper) is being looked at by convicts all over California. They are being asked — 'Do you recognize this person? If so, how does he operate? Where can we find him?' And you know how the guys inside hate any man who victimizes children."

The Petaluma Post Office has been staying open after hours, Joe added. "People there collected $60,000 for postage so we could keep sending out flyers about Polly. Right now there are 100,000,000 flyers in circulation. Here's another effect: I hear someone's putting a bill into the U.S. Congress making the postage free in these cases."

Many different kinds of volunteers have offered search services, Joe said — "bikers, computer experts, truck drivers. It's frustrating as hell. All these professionals and amateurs are poised. What we need is the right phone call. Someone stumbling onto something. Action keeps me going. It's awful when there's not enough to do. My wife (Betty Jane) suffers terribly with the waiting."

"What can people do?" Elizabeth said. "Pray for Polly. Keep her in prayers and thoughts. Tell her we're coming for her."

CUSD hires new insurance consultant

periodically review our program and the services we're receiving," Baldwin said. "Certainly we were pleased with Jackson Booth's work."

Clark Struve, owner of Berlin Struve, Inc. — a local insurance consulting firm — has known Booth for 22 years and spoke on his behalf at the board meeting.

"I hate to see business leaving the community," Struve said. "Jackson knows the community, its health needs, its doctors."

"Bigger is not necessarily better and we have local talent in Jackson," Struve added. "Let's keep it local."

Booth said he was surprised and disappointed when he learned of the committee's recommendation.

"We had done an awful lot of preparation to make some cost-saving moves," Booth said. "From what I have heard, they (board members) were not unhappy, and they are not saving any money by making the move. In fact, it could cost them more money."

But Hightower, who was involved in the interview process, cited rising health care costs as one of the greatest problems facing CUSD, and made a motion to approve retaining Keenan and Associates as the new insurance consultant.

Concours Italiana presents check to FOCUS for $10,800

FOUNDERS OF Concours Italiana presented a $10,800 check to representatives of Friends of Carmel Unified Schools (FOCUS) on Saturday, Oct. 9, at Quail Lodge Resort and Golf Club.

The money donated to FOCUS was raised from ticket sales at the seventh annual Concours Italiana, which featured more than 400 classic and exotic Italian cars and motorcycles.

FOCUS is an independent fund-raising organization which works to obtain tax-deductible donations for the benefit of Carmel's public schools and students.

McPherson, Patton focus on economy

but it's a hard sell."

Yet for all their differences, the two appear to agree on some key points:

- The regional economy would benefit most from the contemplated California State University campus and other educational facilities at Fort Ord.

Patton emphasizes the need to preserve the Fort Ord waterfront, while McPherson stresses the goal of ensuring a large role for private enterprise in the new educational and research institutions.

McPherson suggested private ownership and operation of certain buildings "to whatever extent possible and legal."

- California has become too expensive a place in which to do business. Reforming the review process is essential.

- Consolidation of state and regional regulatory agencies where possible would help in such reform.

In a year when reform is "in," nothing is too sacred to propose for amendments — not even the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), which dictates the state mandates for environmental-impact reviews.

"The purpose of CEQA is good," said McPherson. "But I think it is also cumbersome, often abused and costly."

In the end, Patton is liable to express greater confidence in the ability of government to reform itself and help business. Being a part of government requires a fundamental belief in its institutions, he explained.

McPherson is more skeptical, insisting government cannot be the solution, only the "facilitator" in letting the private sector drive the economy.

If these are classic Republican-Democratic clashes, they are no less important in understanding the McPherson-Patton battle.

Celebration of Eric Barker's life set for Sunday in Big Sur

ERIC BARKER

By JOHN DETRO

*I can hear the wild trumpets
Of the whales, and sometimes catch (Before it disappears) a black
Half-wheel of shoulder turning south!*

BIG SUR poet Eric Barker was remembering "the Roman tub" and Hot Springs when he wrote those lines. And now some loving individuals stand ready to remember the late bard.

Witty, lyrical, bright of eye, gnomish, much-published and the winner of such prizes as the Shelley Memorial Award, he died in 1973. The Celebration of Eric Barker will happen outdoors from 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 17, at the Henry Miller Library — just south of Nepenthe on Highway 1.

Organizers invite the public free of charge, and say the grounds will be open for picnicking between 11 a.m. and the main event's start.

"The idea (for this occasion) came from several people," says Vince Bradley, dean of instruction at Monterey Peninsula College. "We wanted to honor his lifetime of poetry and make sure the younger generation knows who he is."

Ferlinghetti expected

"We expect that (San Francisco poet Lawrence) Ferlinghetti will attend," Bradley adds. "He has a cabin in Big Sur and knew Eric. Jack Curtis and other writers will offer testimonials."

Golfer's Etiquette - A Few Reminders

By Belle James, Owner - Village Golf Shops

Maybe not in the rule book...but sure a good way to make the game more enjoyable!

RULE: Must rake trap after you hit out. But if you didn't, the next fellow's ball gets stuck in your footprint, and he can't move it. Now... he's going to feel happy about this, and on his next drive might not wait for you to get out of his way... and hits into you. Ah, but you, the "non-raker", are actually two groups ahead. Now you're mad and the group ahead of you has high blood pressure — where's the fun?! So... let's be aware of the whole course and of each other. Be thoughtful; rake the trap.

A few more reminders:

- Show up early for your tee-off time. There might be a line at the cashier. (Don't laugh...I'm always late.)
- Let the single player go through — he'll just be on your tail & aggravating you anyway. But don't try to play through or push (hit into next group) when you know there's a wait on the next tee.
- After 10 strokes... pick it up... let's keep going!
- If the group ahead of you is getting out of sight, that's a good clue to let the group behind you play through.
- About divots (those grassy clumps) — replace them in the hole you just made, PLEASE. And if you see a divot next to a dirt spot, a quick fix won't hurt you!

- P.S. Greens keepers...how about port-a-potties at the men's favorite trees? Ladies drink coffee, too!

Barker tribute Sunday

With "no-host coffee available," the attendees will hear friends and family members talk about his life. Reading from Barker's work will be Keith Decker, Don March, Taelen Thomas, Cartshore and John Des Forges.

Bob Blaisdell's film footage on Eric will be shown. Barker's daughter, Jean McNamer from near Chico, will share memories and letters.

Others who will comment: Patti Railton, granddaughter from Washington State, and Michaelen (Gypsy) Kimmey of Connecticut. "Gypsy was Eric's special friend," Bradley says, "and has all of his collected poetry."

Bradley will announce the Eric Barker Memorial Scholarship in Poetry. "This will be presented each June to one student at the MPC graduation," he says.

In case of foul weather, the celebration will take place in Big Sur Grange Hall.

Struve strives for excellence

restaurant.

When she's not working or studying, Struve enjoys reading and being with her friends. Her outdoor activities include skiing, snowboarding, backpacking and hiking.

But neither work nor play can stand in the way of Struve's academic achievements, including a 3.97 cumulative grade point average. Struve said her favorite teachers at CHS include Chad Lincoln, Richard Fletcher and Mike Lewis.

Additionally, Struve has been active in student government and clubs, and has competed on the CHS varsity swim team for the last three years. She currently serves as senior class treasurer.

While Struve hasn't decided where she will attend college yet, she knows what she wants to do when she gets there. At present, she is considering the University of Colorado and Oregon State University.

"I definitely want to work with children," Struve said. "I love kids. I love their innocence."

Considering a major in early childhood education or child development, Struve said she wants to teach younger kids, "before they get corrupted."

Struve has three younger siblings: 11-year-old twin brothers attending seventh-grade at Carmel Middle School, and a 15-year-old sister, a sophomore at Carmel High. Her father sells life insurance and her mother is a teacher's aide at Carmel River School.

Valuable contribution

The community service requirement - now in its third year - was developed to improve relations between students and the community through volunteer work. According to Ellena, CHS students are required to put in 15 hours every school year and must accumulate 60 hours by the end of their senior year.

In the last two years, CHS students have contributed more than 21,000 community service hours to a multitude of needy organizations, Ellena said.

According to Ellena, the CHS art department and Carmel Foundation are collaborating on an art show that will continue through the end of this month. Ellena said work from 15 to 20 students is on display at the foundation.

"Students will get community service credit for time spent on the art and also during the reception," Ellena said.

But there are some CHS students who resent being asked to do more - above and beyond the academic requirements for graduation.

To those students, Ellena says: "It can be a very rewarding experience, depending on how they want to approach it and what they want to get out of it."

While Struve can relate to students who see the community service requirement as a burden, she thinks they may change their minds about it after trying it for a while.

"I think anyone that does it will experience a good feeling inside," said Struve. "It makes you feel good about yourself to help other people. I don't know if that's true with everybody, but that's how I feel."

Doris Day's Best Friends

By DORIS DAY

Too many cats

I'VE LONG admired the work of the San Francisco SPCA. It is a well-run organization with a multitude of programs to benefit our Best Friends.

I was interested to learn that the society, as part of its program to help control the number of feral cats roaming the streets of San Francisco, has come up with a terrific idea.

A reward of $3,000 is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of anyone seen abandoning a cat in a San Francisco park, alley or open space. I hope this has some effect on the heartless people who casually toss cats from their car windows and dump litters of kittens in trash bins.

To my friends at the San Francisco SPCA - thanks for caring!

Many people who have allergies find some relief by using ionizer/air cleaners. These efficient little machines help to remove dust, pollen and other particles from the air. And guess what? I understand they can be just as beneficial to an allergic dog or cat.

One recent letter in my mailbag was from the owner of a 15-year-old kitty cat named Benjamin. She has several air cleaners in her home to make breathing easier for her asthmatic little friend. As long as she keeps the filters clean, Benjamin's sneezing and watery eyes are seldom a problem. If you or your pet suffer from allergies, you might want to try an air cleaner or two.

In the past I've talked about the importance of putting a leash on your doggy and taking him out for a nice stroll. I really feel this is a dog owner's obligation because it's absolutely essential for the average dog's mental and physical well-being.

If you feel you don't have time to walk your dog or engage in some sort of one-on-one physical activity with him, maybe you shouldn't have a dog at all. Dogs need to be walked, love to be walked, deserve to be walked!

Allowing your dog to run off-leash in most cities is a crime - literally and figuratively. Every dog that is hit by a car is off-leash. Most, according to their owners, had "never run into the street before" but it only takes one time for a tragedy to occur.

(Written in collaboration with Judy Ruby, Director, Doris Day Pet Foundation, Los Angeles).

Furry friends remembered

WHEN I attend fund-raisers I usually dream up a theme question to ask people I interview. So I stumbled into Doris Day's Best Friends dinner/dance Saturday evening at Quail Lodge, eager to ask, "Which animal was the love of your life?"

I didn't mean to make anyone cry.

But Doris Day, a vision in peach cotton gauze, pearls to her midriff, and her signature pageboy, looked wistful when she said, "Biggest. He was a mutt, a grey and white poodle, and the greatest dog that ever lived. He was funny, loving, and my best friend. I miss him every day."

Even Clint Eastwood looked a little misty when he spoke of Lady, a cross-breed that he got as a child and who stayed with him for 18 years.

But Vivian Lewis, who is moving to Carmel Valley with her husband, Ted, actually cried remembering her dog, Maggie, a Maltese poodle. "We've cried for three years since she died," she said. Even a pace-maker didn't save the 6-year-old dog, whom they buried in a pet cemetery.

I actually got choked up myself remembering Kaftan, my jet black cat who lived with me for 15 years before he died in 1990. This cat survived so many catastrophes that I wrote a book about him, "The Remarkable Misadventures of Kaftan Cat," which I have yet to publish. He did get his poem published in International Cat Fancy magazine. What else, for a cat who was run over by a garbage truck and survived to tell about it?

My friends used to say they knew I would survive the death of all people dear to me, but they were seriously concerned about what would happen to me if Kaftan died.

When he did, I gave him a proper burial in my back yard, with his best friends, poems and invocation, a sprinkle of stars, and a marble head stone that reads, "Kaftan, Among the Stars."

Yes, I cried buckets when he died. Thinking I was tough, I attended a major soiree the evening after I had lay him to rest. About halfway through, I started sobbing into my salad.

So I continued to ask my question, with empathy, under the big top (honestly, the tent was the biggest I've seen since Ringling Bros. came through town). Suzanne Sommers was my next victim. She looked young, lovely and more petite than I'd imagined she would. She said she'd gone back to a darker blonde than her white hair of yore. We first connected when I told her how much I admired the poetry book she published a decade or so ago, and asked if she would do another. "I'd like to do that, maybe later in my life when it's more leisurely."

As for a memorable pet, it was Mitzy, a tailless Manx cat. "She was my best friend. I grew up with her and she stayed with me until I was a teen."

I intercepted Shane and Stewart Fuller, she on the SPCA of Monterey County auxiliary and he on the SPCA board, just before they stepped onto the dance floor to boogie to Les Brown and his Band of Renown (great music, by the way).

I was touched when Shane said she had gotten a 14-year-old dog from Doris Day's Pet Foundation.

The band played on, my table partners and I were accused of hijacking the table we were sitting at (with no table numbers things got corn-fused), the band played, "Que Sera, sera," and Doris pirouetted across the stage, took the mic, and said, simply, "I love you all."

She was followed by Sommers, who sang some torchy songs in her long black sequined gown.

Fans were buzzing around Lonnie Anderson, wearing a dress with signature cleavage. She said her all-time best pet was Cocoa, a dachshund she had 20 years ago, who lived to the ripe old age of 15. She said she got him when she was age 25 - you figure it out. "We went through a lot of changes in life," she said.

Back at my table, I spoke with Ruth and Lee Collins who used to have horses, goats and other farm ani-

LONI ANDERSON arrives, showing customary cleavage, at the dinner/dance for Doris Day and Friends on Saturday evening, on the arm of Jeff Brown.

DORIS DAY wasn't the only star at the banquet. Kelley Sue Simpson got together with her friend Melissa Fjugstad.

VICKI LAWRENCE, talk show hostess extraordinaire, took time to talk to an autograph hound Saturday night.

SUZANNE SOMMERS sparkled and sang torchy songs for the crowd of 650.

AND DORIS, looking younger than springtime and in somewhat of a coming out party, was mobbed by friends and admirers as she entered the big tent set up at Quail Lodge.

mals. But they've moved to a condo and are now petless. "It frees us to travel," Lee said.

About that time, Delaney MacDonald piped in with the name of her all time favorite - Banjo Burr Bottom, an SPCA mutt. "He was an ideal, shaggy dog who lived with me for 16 years and then went to the big doggy den in the sky."

At one time she owned an exotic pet farm and made fast friends with rheas, cousins of the ostrich. "They're very smart," she said.

Some 650 people attended the dinner that followed a day of golf, tennis and croquet. (by the way, golf low gross winners were Bill Brown, Joe Wandke, Jay Gentry and Bob Infelise). And it is hoped this first fundraiser for The Family and Children Services, Boys & Girls Club of Monterey, Peninsula Outreach, and The Doris Day Pet Foundation, will become a yearly event.

Speaking of charity. I currently live with three cats: Peaches, Monet and Truffle. They drive me crazy, but I rescued them from the glue factory, and that consoles me...

Speaking of pets...

The SPCA of Monterey County recently named several humanitarians, including: "Sunny", a working companion dog of Terri Nash, a Carmelite and SPCA volunteer. Sunny is quite famous and has been inducted into the California Veterinary Medical Association Hall of Fame, was featured in "Dog Fancy", and has appeared on the "Mac and Mutley" TV show.

The President's Award was awarded to Mars. Arthur Benning of Pebble Beach, a former SPCA board member and an active member of the SPCA's Monterey Peninsula Auxiliary.

WINE, WINE, wine (from 30 wineries) is the perennial theme for the auction, a major fund-raiser for the school, chaired this year by Christy Pollacci and Julie Conner.

SANTA CATALINA juniors, Lindsay Heller and Danielle Huthart sold raffle tickets for a seven day trip to Maui.

THE NEWLY opened Spinning Wheel Restaurant was the cite of the Carmel Abalone Club's Autumn Mixer. Here, owner John Nahas served sandwiches to Abalone Club members Maxine Jennings and Tom Nash.

A LIVELY, surprise 60th birthday party with a country western theme was hosted last Saturday by mid-valley resident Lorraine Tarantino-Arendo for longtime friend and Carmel accountant Ward Jennings.

Professional Women's Network to host annual Business Showcase

The Professional Women's Network of the Monterey Peninsula hosts "A Decade of Excellence," its 10th Annual Fall Business Showcase from 5 to 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 19 at the Monterey Conference Center in Serra Ballroom I.

The evening will provide an opportunity to meet the professional women in business who have been instrumental in providing a network, not only for women-owned businesses, but for all businesses in our community, according to event organizers.

The event is free and drawings for free gifts from participating businesses will take place through the evening.

For more information, contact event chair Ripple Huth at 375-6118.

'Buying The Best' magazine announces new staff members

Wendy Crockett, Buying The Best's new creative director, has been a freelance graphic designer on the peninsula for 12 years.

She has done design work for Stone Container Corporation in Salinas, Hampton Brown in Carmel, Digital Research, Inc. in Monterey and Instant Type in Monterey. Crockett graduated from California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo with a Bachelor of Science degree in graphic communications.

Linda Cosmero, the new account executive and editorial assistant, comes to Buying The Best after working as an assistant to local author, Iris Rainer Dart. After graduating from UC Berkeley with a degree in Communications and working for KQED in San Francisco, Cosmero relocated back home to the peninsula.

Buying The Best is a locally owned and produced publication on the Monterey Peninsula. It boasts a readership in excess of 70,000.

Sensations on Ocean opens

Carmel's newest clothing store, Sensations on Ocean, was officially unveiled last week with a three-day grand opening.

Owned by Tom and Jenefee Bruce, the store is located southwest of Dolores on Ocean Avenue in the building formerly occupied for 47 years by Lanz of Carmel.

The Bruces also own three other clothing stores — Sensations and Cachet Fashions in Carmel as well as élan in Pebble Beach.

The festivities for the grand opening included a trunk showing of a new line of Santa Fe collection jackets.

Additional information on the new store can be obtained by calling 625-2935.

Seniors may rule, but responsibilities abound

OVER THE past three years, I had always watched in wonder and amazement as seniors scrambled around trying to meet all of their deadlines. But only now that I am a senior myself do I realize the full burden that is felt by every 17- or 18-year old who plans to graduate and go on to college.

In the past few weeks, I've already come close to missing several deadlines. I signed up for both my SATs and my achievement tests literally a few hours before the testing company begins charging a late fee. Last week, I forgot to turn in some pictures to the yearbook, but fortunately they still accepted them. And things haven't even gotten started yet.

Beginning this week, I have at least one, if not more, scholarship applications, often with essays, due each week. In about a month, the college application deadlines will start coming up and I'll be pressed to meet all of those. Two weeks from now, I have senior portraits due. Sometime between now and Nov. 6, I have to find a date for Homecoming.

Between calculus, physics, and world literature I can hardly remember whether or not to take the square root of Homer or find the average velocity of Gulliver as he travels.

Maintaining sanity

When I do get a moment to breathe, I sit back and wonder how I manage to keep my sanity. Then I look around at some of my peers who have all the same classes I do, lots of other responsibilities, plus they play a sport and an instrument, do community service work, and hold a job so they can support their families.

They even have to walk to school in sweltering heat and frigid cold (at the same time), carrying a 70-pound backpack, with little more than a T-shirt and a pair of jeans to wear, and no shoes.

OK, that maybe stretching it a bit, but the point is high school seniors work hard. We may seem like we goof around all the time, but with responsibility comes the need to relax every once in a while.

I guess that's why they created weekends and vacations.

CHS students consider changing mascot name

THE ASSOCIATED Student Body at Carmel High School has been discussing the possibility of changing the name of the school mascot, which has been the "Padres" since the 1940s.

More than 450 CHS students were polled recently to gather their opinions about changing the mascot name, according to ASB representative Drew Teti.

Of those students surveyed, 246 said they would favor changing it, 90 said they were opposed and 127 were undecided.

Teti said the ASB is interested in getting input from CHS alumni about changing the mascot name. Alumni are asked to call Chad Lincoln, ASB advisor, at 624-1821.

'Red Ribbon Week' slated for week of Oct. 18-22

"RED RIBBON Week will be held Oct. 18-22 throughout the Carmel Unified School District in an effort to show a commitment toward a healthy, drug-free lifestyle for area youth.

The campaign is a joint effort between CUSD and the National Federation for Drug-free Youth, Inc.

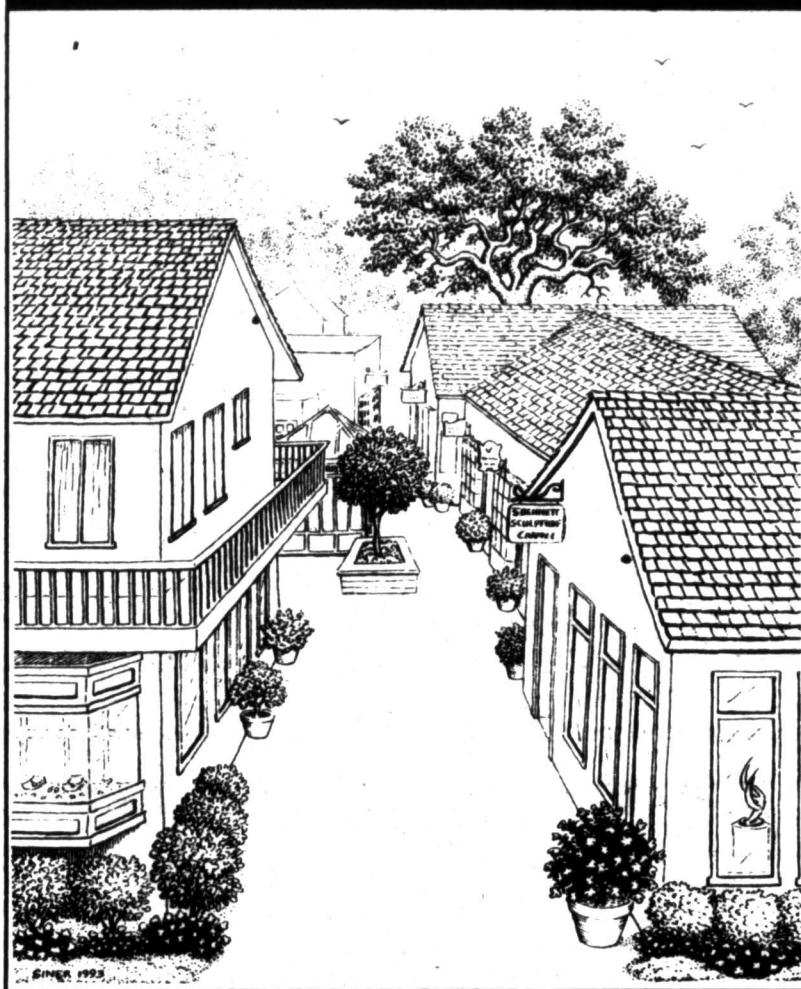

Part of the drive involves promoting drug awareness and prevention education efforts within the district.

During Red Ribbon Week, students and community members are encouraged to wear red ribbons to visibly demonstrate their commitment to living without drugs and alcohol.

Additional information can be obtained by calling CHS counselor Lauren Cohen at 624-1821.

Catherine L. Armstrong

Catherine Armstrong, of Carmel, died Sept. 28 at Carmel Valley Manor. She was 93.

Born Oct. 22, 1899, in Fairbury, Neb., Mrs. Armstrong had lived at Carmel Valley Manor for 16 years. She was a national promotion manager for Vogue patterns with Vogue magazine in the 1920s. She was a 1921 graduate of the William Allen White School of Journalism at the University of Kansas.

Mrs. Armstrong also was a member of the Wayfarer Church in Carmel, P.E.O., Alpha Xi Delta sorority and the Photographic Society of America. She participated actively in many organizations in Westfield, N.J., where she lived with her husband for almost 50 years before moving to Carmel.

Mrs. Armstrong and her husband conducted programs for many years at the national conventions of the Photographic Society of America. Survivors include her son, Lorrimer Jr. of South Orleans, Mass.; her daughter, Margaret D'Ardenne of San Jose; five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Her husband, Lorrimer, died in 1987.

A graveside service was held at Fairview Cemetery in Westfield, N.J. A memorial service was held at Wayfarer Church in Carmel. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Armstrong Family Scholarship, William Allen White School of Journalism, University of Kansas, Lawrence, Kan.

John B. Heller

John B. Heller, of Carmel, a retired insurance broker, died of brain cancer Oct. 2 at Beverly Manor Convalescent Hospital in Monterey. Born Nov. 27, 1917, in Newark, N.J., Mr. Heller had lived in Carmel for 37 years.

He was an insurance broker for 15 years until he retired in 1971. He also was a former member of Rancho Canada Golf Club, and a retired Army major.

He is survived by his wife, Ursula; two daughters, Carol, also of Carmel, and Margaret Plummer of Jacksonville, Fla. and two grandchildren.

No services were held, and his ashes were scattered at sea. The California Cremation Society was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the donor's favorite charity.

Elizabeth Emma Bannerman

Elizabeth Emma Bannerman of Carmel died Aug. 27 at Beverly Manor Convalescent Hospital in Monterey. She was 82.

Born March 12, 1911 in Fresno, Mrs. Bannerman lived on the Monterey Peninsula for 70 years.

She and her late husband, James, who died in 1989, were the former owners of the Carmel Union Oil service station in Carmel.

She was a life member of the Soroptimist Club and a past worthy matron of the Monterey Peninsula Chapter 68 Order of Eastern Star. She also was a member of the Lighthouse Keepers of Pacific Grove.

Mrs. Bannerman is survived by a son, James, of Reno, Nev.; three daughters, Eleanor Maxwell of Monterey, Joyce Seifert of Lopez Island, Wash. and Arline Moses of Concord; five brothers, Fred Johansen of Salinas, Clifford Johansen and Donald Johansen, both of Pacific Grove, Johnny Johansen of Kansas City, Kan. and Ken Johansen of Sonoma; three sisters, Louise Beck of Carruthers, Anna Genasci of Sacramento and Lucille Carrick of Southern California; 14 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Services for friends and family were held at her home. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of cremation.

Walter V. Patton Jr.

Walter V. Patton Jr., a former Carmel dentist, died on Sept. 22 in Klamath Falls, Ore. He was 67.

Born on Dec. 1, 1925, in Winner, S.D., Dr. Patton had a dental practice in Carmel for 32 years. He retired in 1984 and moved to Fort Klamath, Ore., where he owned and operated the Crystal Creek Lodge for 10 years.

He later moved to Klamath Falls. He was in a serious auto accident in November 1992 in Klamath Falls. Dr. Patton served in the Army from 1955 to 1960, stationed at Fort Ord.

He was a graduate of Oregon State University,

Corvallis, and the Oregon State University School of Dentistry. He was also a member of the Masons.

He is survived by his wife, Dianne; three sons, Jim of Namath Falls, David of Columbus, Ohio, and Bill Patton; three daughters, Leslie of Portland, Ore., Kathy of Seattle and Mary of Sacramento; a sister, Helen Weaver of Atascadero; three grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Private cremation and memorial services have taken place in Klamath Falls. The Eternal Hills Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Masonic Lodge in Carmel.

Irene Jones

Irene Jones, of Carmel, a homemaker, died of heart failure Oct. 6 at her home. She was 68.

Born July 25, 1925, in Montana, Mrs. Jones, who was known as Steve, had been a resident of Monterey County for 48 years. She was a member of Carmel Mission Parish.

Survivors include her husband, Orville; three daughters, Claudia Shephard of Prunedale, Kimberly Bisceglia of San Jose, and Adrian Corona of Carmel Valley; three sons, Gregory of Oakland, Bradley of Seaside and Curtis of San Jose; six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

A vigil service was held, and a funeral Mass was celebrated at the Carmel Mission Basilica, followed by cremation and scattering of ashes at sea. The Mission Mortuary was in charge of arrangements. The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Hospice of the Central Coast.

Library Foundation kicks off 1993 fund-raising campaign

CARMEL PUBLIC Library Foundation (CPLF) has kicked off its 1993 campaign, the goal being $65,000 for books, materials and programs at Harrison Memorial Library and the Park Branch.

Area residents and former donors are receiving CPLF letters and brochures which include news of library needs and progress.

Honorary chairpersons for this year's edition of the annual drive are Ted and Libby Durein, longtime community leaders. Chairperson is Dorothy Newton of Carmel.

Vice-chairpersons are Donald Kremer and Cecil Wahle. Campaign committee members: Margaret Christensen, John Hicks, Lucette Kenan and Robert Tyler.

DOROTHY NEWTON (left) chairs the 1993 fundraising campaign of Carmel Public Library Foundation, which has started mailing out pertinent materials. Here she shares the brochure with the honorary chairpersons — Libby and Ted Durein.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

The average age at which American men retire keeps falling. Most men now leave fulltime jobs before age 63. At companies with more than 1,000 employees, the average male retirement age is 59. Many large companies, seeking to reduce their work force, offer inducements for older workers to take early retirement. Says a spokesman for a foundation concerned with issues of the elderly: "Of the older people who are out of the work force, half are satisfied, a quarter can't work because of health or family situations, and the other quarter are very unhappy about the situation they're in." One result is the growing trend of older people returning to the work force in part-time jobs.

At age 78, British author Mary Wesley published her seventh novel, "A Sensible Life." One review referred to her as "a late-starting writer...busy making up for lost time." Her first novel was published when she was 71. Born in England in 1912, the daughter of an Army colonel, she studied at the London School of Economics, married and divorced a nobleman, experienced World War II working for the War Office, and has lived in France, Italy and Germany.

Inside Politics: FACEOFF ON PROPOSITION 174

■ YES: It's our children we're trying to save

By J.G. 'MIKE' FORD, JR.

EDUCATION REFORM in California has failed.

Despite what we are told by the legislature and the California Teachers Association, the California School Boards Association and the California State PTA, we are no closer to meaningful reform than we were last year — or the year before that. The sooner we accept this fact, the more likely we will be to move toward meaningful reform in the future.

When you strip away the rhetoric, there are really only two types of education reform: 1) that which attempts to save institutions and 2) that which attempts to save children. The problem is that we continue to focus on institutions at the expense of children.

Institution-based reform assumes that institutions make better choices than families and individuals. Thus limited, this type of reform is confined to concepts like "decentralization," "school accountability" and "parental involvement." While these catch phrases sound impressive, they cannot even be defined, let alone applied. In fact, most school administrators speak as though these reforms are already in place.

Choice and competition

Child-based reform, on the other hand, is characterized by the concepts of choice and competition, and is manifested through such reforms as school choice, and to some extent, the establishment of charter schools. Child-based reformers realize that "parental involvement" and "school accountability" come naturally as a result of choice and competition.

We are told that we are now closer to real reform because legislators, interest groups and the education establishment are "talking to each other rather than at each other." The question should not be whether they are talking, but what they are talking about! Dialogue based on faulty assumptions only yields new rhetoric.

In reality, the only way to bring true reform to a monopolistic bureaucracy, like the government school system, is to remove its monopoly status. Proposition 174 on the Nov. 2 ballot gives parents: 1) the power to decide where their child goes to school, and 2) access, in the form of a voucher, to $2,600 of the $5,200 that taxpayers provide for that child's education.

Simply by passing Prop. 174, Californians can restore to parents the role of buyer of education for their children. Prop. 174 will end the monopoly status of our government school system.

Defining public education

Advocates of institution-based reform like to say that supporters of school choice are "against public education." This is nonsense. "Public education" is not defined by the institutions themselves, but rather a willingness on the part of the public to fund education for all children. Removing the government school monopoly on public funding makes it far more likely that all children receive the best education available. School choice does not lessen a commitment to public education; it reaffirms it.

In kindergarten through high school, where American parents have no real choice in where their children go to school, our schools are generally acknowledged to be the worst in the industrialized world. Prop. 174 will simply extend the liberating benefits of choice to K-12 education in California.

Public support for school choice is becoming more and more evident. Before we go into the polling booth on Nov. 2, we must ask ourselves: Are we trying to save institutions or children?

J. G. Ford Jr. was co-proponent of California Proposition 140 on term limits, and he was the chairman of the drafting committee for the Parental Choice in Education Initiative, which is on the Nov. 2 ballot as Prop 174.

■ NO: Children, taxpayers both lose if it passes

By JUDY HIGGERSON

THE LEAGUE of Women Voters (LWV) is strongly opposed to Proposition 174, the so-called Parental Choice in Education Initiative, or "school voucher plan."

If enacted, Prop. 174 would create new constitutional guarantees. It would take away flexibility to address changing conditions and would add and lock in new regulations and mandates to the state constitution.

The LWV opposes expenditures by the state (taxpayers' money) for vouchers to non-public schools. It is estimated this proposal could cost taxpayers $1 billion without educating a single additional student. Taxpayer dollars will be transferred to private schools as a subsidy for current private school students. It is the parents' choice to send a child to private school, and the taxpayer should not be asked to pay the child's tuition.

Prop. 174 will radically alter the funding of public education, with the long-term effect of devastating the public school system. There will also be increased costs to the state of setting up the bureaucracy for the monthly dispersal of funds to the schools, and the savings account for each student whose tuition is less than $2,600.

Under Prop. 174, a private school has no obligation to provide a rigorous curriculum, minimum time requirements, minimum standards of service, standards regarding teachers or requirements for financial accountability.

Any new regulations on private schools — beyond those now in effect — would be prohibited by the initiative unless approved by a three-fourths vote of the legislature. Local governments could impose new health, safety or land-use regulations on private schools only upon two-thirds vote by the local governing body and approval by a majority of the people in the affected area who are registered to vote. The absence of accountability measures will open the system to possible consumer fraud.

Under this measure, the legislature is required to establish a process by which public schools could become "independent scholarship-redeeming schools." These schools would not be subject to laws and regulations any more restrictive than those applied to private schools.

Under Prop. 174, there are no prohibitions against discrimination on the basis of gender, religion, ability or disability. There are no provisions for children who may have special needs.

Substantial constitutional questions are raised regarding the separation of church and state and direct aid to religion. We urge voters to read the entire initiative carefully. It is available in the material mailed to each voter.

Our public schools are a unifying source of community that make it possible for young people of different economic, cultural, and family backgrounds to work and grow together and to perpetuate American tradition and culture. Prop. 174 undermines these basic premises.

In sum, this proposition is flawed. Children lose, taxpayers lose, and it is just plain bad law.

Judy Higginson is president of The League of Women Voters of the Monterey Peninsula. This commentary reflects the League's position, which is formulated through a process of study, member understanding and consensus.

Carmel Commentary

By TONI JEPSON

Good Morning Carmel!

CARMEL AND the entire Monterey Peninsula have been given a tremendous opportunity that will have far-reaching effects for years to come.

Good Morning America, the ABC morning news program, seen by more than five million people, will tape its show on Del Mar Beach (foot of Ocean Avenue) on Monday Nov. 8, to be aired nationally the following day.

Many of you are probably aware that this show has "gone on the road" before — last year to the Southwest, Australia and the Midwest. This year, it is doing a series of shows on the West Coast — one from Big Sur, one from Carmel, one from Stanford University, one from Napa Valley and the last from San Francisco.

Showcase

During the Carmel taping, they will attempt to showcase the entire Monterey Peninsula and will have special features on golf, the otter rescue program, the Monterey Bay Aquarium, the Monterey Jazz Festival and early California writers who have influenced our area. They will also interview Doris Day, Clint Eastwood, Linus Pauling of Big Sur and other locals. The backdrop for all of this will be our own Carmel-by-the-Sea!

Marketing a destination can be a very tricky and expensive proposition. Industry standards call for expenditures of approximately 4 - 7 percent of gross receipts. In Carmel alone, this translates to about $300,000 per year (based on receipts of transient occupancy tax and sales tax figures alone).

Needless to say, the marketing effort put forth by the Carmel Business Association cannot come close to this figure. But a show such as this, which comes to us at no cost, will go a long way in filling the gap between what the CBA spends in promoting Carmel (currently approximately $50,000/year) and the national attention our jewel of a destination deserves.

Every time we have been successful in having a story published about Carmel-by-the-Sea, there is a substantial and measurable increase in interest in Carmel as a visitor destination.

Public relations is a very effective tool in marketing as it spotlights what others are saying about you rather than what you are saying about yourself through an advertisement which is written and purchased by you.

Just as with the broadcast of the U.S. Open in June 1992, this is a chance for us to show the world what a fine job we have done in protecting our pristine village and spark the desire for people to visit.

We could not buy this kind of exposure and are indeed blessed that Good Morning America has given Carmel this opportunity to stage their show.

Toni Jepson is executive director of The Carmel Business Association.

Village Voice

By GARY KELLY

Mother Nature does know best

"STRONG AS an Oak" and "The Mighty Oak" are familiar phrases that, for the most part, accurately portray the essence of a tree that thrives in our urban forest. Quercus agrifolia, commonly known as Coast Live Oak, is the most abundant tree in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

There are nearly 12,000 oaks, comprising 39 percent of the forest. They are one of the most disease-resistant pest-free species. Recently, however, many residents have expressed concern about the health of our oaks. Several trees appear "off-color" with a large amount of brown foliage. This malady is caused by a small cynipid wasp (Dryocornus dubiosus).

During the summer, this insect lays its eggs on the underside of the leaf. Numerous small round growths called galls form on the leaf, causing damage to its structure and the resulting browning of the leaf. Although unsightly, the damage is not considered life-threatening and there is no researched control for this insect. The "Mighty Oak" is tolerant of the infestation and new leaves will emerge healthy in the spring.

Combating the pests

Many insects live on our forest and their presence may or may not be noticed. Mother Nature, in her infinite wisdom, has provided trees with defense mechanisms to combat a multitude of pests. Oaks, however, have no defense against Homosapiens. We alone have the ability to do irreversible damage to our wonderful oaks. This damage is done by people who love their oaks. They can love them to death.

GARY KELLY

How?

A mature oak is accustomed to a certain balance of moisture, air, soil, temperature and nutrients. A change in these factors can severely alter conditions for the tree. The most common human activity that alters a tree's environment is watering. Mature oaks get all the water they need from rain. They have the ability to store this water until it is needed during the dry season. Watering oaks throughout the year is very damaging because it promotes the growth of root-destroying fungus. This fungi will proliferate on roots and begin to kill the tree. Unfortunately, there may be few visible signs of fungus before it is too late.

Keep it dry

Think of the root zone as the tree's "home" — the minimum ground required for its survival. The best way to live with a mature oak is to leave it and the area beneath its canopy alone. This means keep it dry. Thick ground coverings of lawn, ferns, ivy, or any other vegetation requiring watering are inappropriate under oaks, not only because of their water requirements and fungus problems, but also because the thick root mass of such ground covers inhibits the exchange of air and moisture that a mature tree requires.

If you insist on landscaping under your oaks, use only plant material that has the same water requirements as the tree. The Forest and Beach Department of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea has a list of appropriate plants for under oaks. You may obtain this list by calling 624-3543.

Remember, we all share in the responsibility for the care of our forest, and sometimes the best care is doing nothing and subscribing to the credo, "Mother Nature Knows Best."

Gary Kelly has served as Carmel-by-the-Sea's city forester for the past decade.

Com-'mission'-ers confusion?

lot is a boon to parents bringing children to games on the site.

The city of Carmel also enjoys use of the lot as it is one of the several areas adjacent to the Mission where a police car is likely to be found maintaining its vigil for speeders on Rio Road. Implementation would force more cars onto the crowded street area adjacent to the field. To reduce the safety factor, parking dimensions and general utility of the lot for no good reason is a new level in civic lunacy even for Carmel.

Again, city refusal to permit low level lighting to be played upon our only building of historic significance is another example of the ridiculous concerns of our city commissions. The restored Mission is one of the oldest buildings in the entire state. Modest lighting for the benefit of tourists and locals alike until a reasonable evening hour surely will injure no one, will enhance the Mission and reflect positively on the community it serves.

The Mission is unique and deserves in its near-isolate splendor to be treated uniquely.

Why quarrel with success?

Dear Editor:

My Monterey County sample ballot advises me that we vote on Nov. 2 for two directors of the Carmel Area Wastewater District (CAWD). This board of directors is responsible for the efficient collection of my sewage.

CAWD service to our home in Carmel is very satisfactory, but I wondered about cost. The current CAWD newsletter tells me that this agency charges sewer user fees ($8/month), which are lower than any other such agency in the Monterey area (there are a total of 12).

So, if service is good and cost is low, why quarrel with success? I am voting for re-election of the incumbent directors — Paul Beemer and John Floyd.

Lindsay Hanna
Carmel

CAWD's quality control

Dear Editor:

The current issue of the Carmel area Wastewater District newsletter ("Connections") did not have space to cover environmental matters. So I must say here that the district's employees and directors are proud of the district's excellent environmental record.

The CAWD collects, treats and disposes of over 45 million gallons of sewage each month without a ripple.

Over 70 miles of collection system flows with no odor problems, because of frequent cleaning and a rigorous replacement program. Many other collection systems do not do so well.

The treatment plant is invisible because a complete envelopment of trees is maintained. It is odorless because the complex combination of biochemical and physical processes is strictly monitored and controlled. The treatment plant is quiet because of thoughtful acoustical design and maintenance.

Continuous quality control of the effluent discharged into Carmel Bay has achieved a condition of zero impact to the receiving waters. Over 15 years of monitoring at various points in the bay for coliform (bacteria), heavy metals, biological oxygen demand and examination of shellfish have shown that there have been no effects on the ecology of the bay.

Yes on Proposition 168

Dear Editor:

The League of Women Voters of the Monterey Peninsula urges all voters to vote yes on Proposition 168, the low-rent housing project initiative.

Current law requires local governments to hold an election and obtain voter approval before certain affordable housing projects can be developed or financed by a public body. Times have changed since Article 34 was enacted in 1950. The public recognizes the need for affordable housing and, in the last decade, 87 percent of the elections have been approved by voters.

Proposition 168 removes the requirement that an election be held, but requires that public notice be given. In addition, it permits those who object to petition for an election.

Meanwhile, local governments spend thousand of taxpayers' dollars in elections when in most cases there is little local objection.

An example can be found in the election held in Monterey on June 6, 1989, to vote on a senior citizen housing project on El Estero. Only 2,298 of the 15,077 eligible voters voted at a cost of $19,791.28—$8.61 per ballot cast. The measure passed. After months of expensive delay, a successful senior housing complex is now in place.

For the State of California to be hobbled by this antiquated law is regrettable given the fiscal situation in most cities and counties. No other state has such a requirement.

And, partly because of it, California ranks next to last, just ahead of Utah, in the percentage of lower income households that benefit from low cost housing.

Vote Yes on Prop. 168.

Judy Higginson, President League of Women Voters of the Monterey Peninsula

From the memory bank

Dear Editor:

I continue to enjoy reading The Pine Cone (and remember selling them for many years in the 1950s.)

I thoroughly enjoyed reading Susan Beck's feature piece on Jim Kelsey (Sept. 16). As a 1960 Carmel High School graduate, I also remember the 35 consecutive winning games of the football team — both as a spectator and player.

Perhaps, because I am only 51, I can (unlike Jim) remember the year King City broke that streak. I believe it was in 1961, when I was a sophomore at Berkeley. Anyway, it was a great piece on an important Carmel figure.

However, when I turned from page three to page four of that same issue ("Passer-by aids authorities..."), even my 51-year-old memories were challenged. That an apparent heart attack victim collapsed "while driving east on San Carlos near Fifth" suggests that Jim's failure to remember a specific year is inconsequential to my confusion and disorientation that San Carlos "near Fifth" runs east-west.

I only arrived in Carmel in 1947 (when Jim was 22), but I'm sure he'd agree with me that it would still be difficult to drive "east on San Carlos near Fifth," even in 1993!

Padres' water polo team making a splash

■ Nichols, Bonanfant, Allaire propel CHS to 9 straight wins

By GARTH MERRILL

CARMEL HIGH School finished the first half of its schedule on a high note with an overall victory at the Gunderson High Water Polo Tournament in San Jose Oct. 8-9.

Carmel rolled over Soquel (4-2), Santa Cruz (15-6) and Watsonville (14-5), and then posted a thrilling 10-9 victory over Monte Vista.

The tournament was the fourth in as many weeks for the Padres, who started the season slowly with two straight losses. The team has now won nine in a row, including a victory over Robert Louis Stevenson last week that evened the Padres' record to 2-2 in league matches.

"I'm pleased they're starting to play together as a team," said Ed Sigourney, Carmel head coach.

The Padres finally started to reach its potential at the Lincoln High Tournament in Stockton two weeks ago, according to Sigourney.

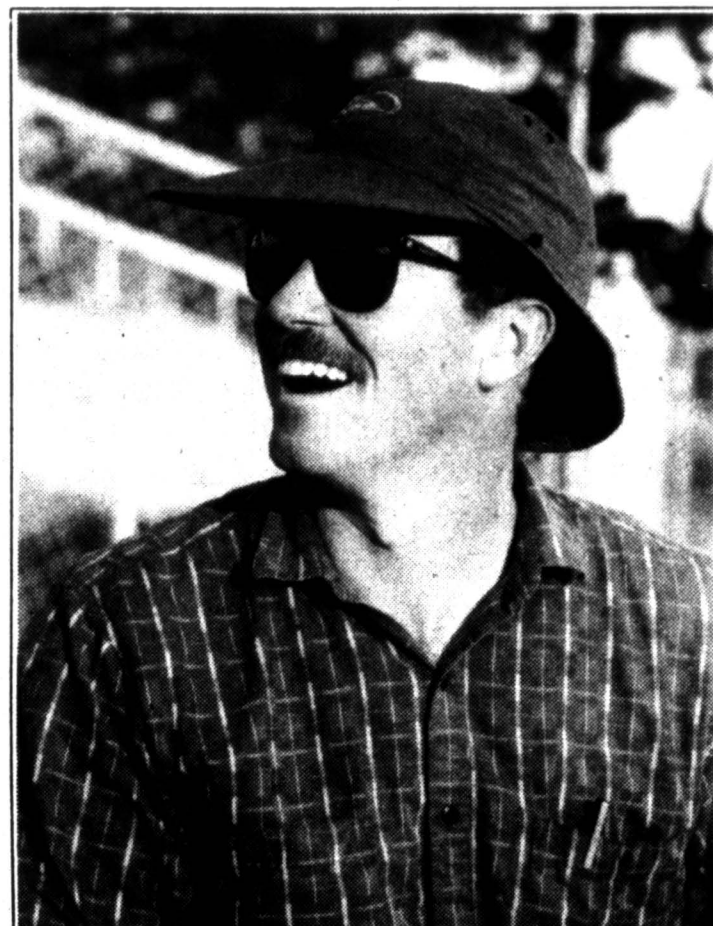

"We started to do a lot of things right," he said. "The kids found people open, they didn't turn the ball over... It was our best game so far."

The Padres have finished second in the league two years straight to perennial powerhouse Live Oak. The top two teams from the Monterey Bay League Championships in November automatically qualify for the Central Coast Section playoffs, while a third team usually earns an at-large birth.

"I expect us to finish at least third," Sigourney said. "We're kind of young. My strength in numbers is in the junior class."

Two juniors Sigourney expects to continue to make waves are Kyle Nichols and Steve Bonanfant, who lead the team in goals and assists, respectively. During the Gunderson Tournament, Nichols notched seven goals and nine assists while Bonanfant chalked up eight goals and five assists.

Nichols "may be my best player," Sigourney said. See WATER POLO page 48

Coaching water polo or trapping lizards, Ed Sigourney dives head first into work

By GARTH MERRILL

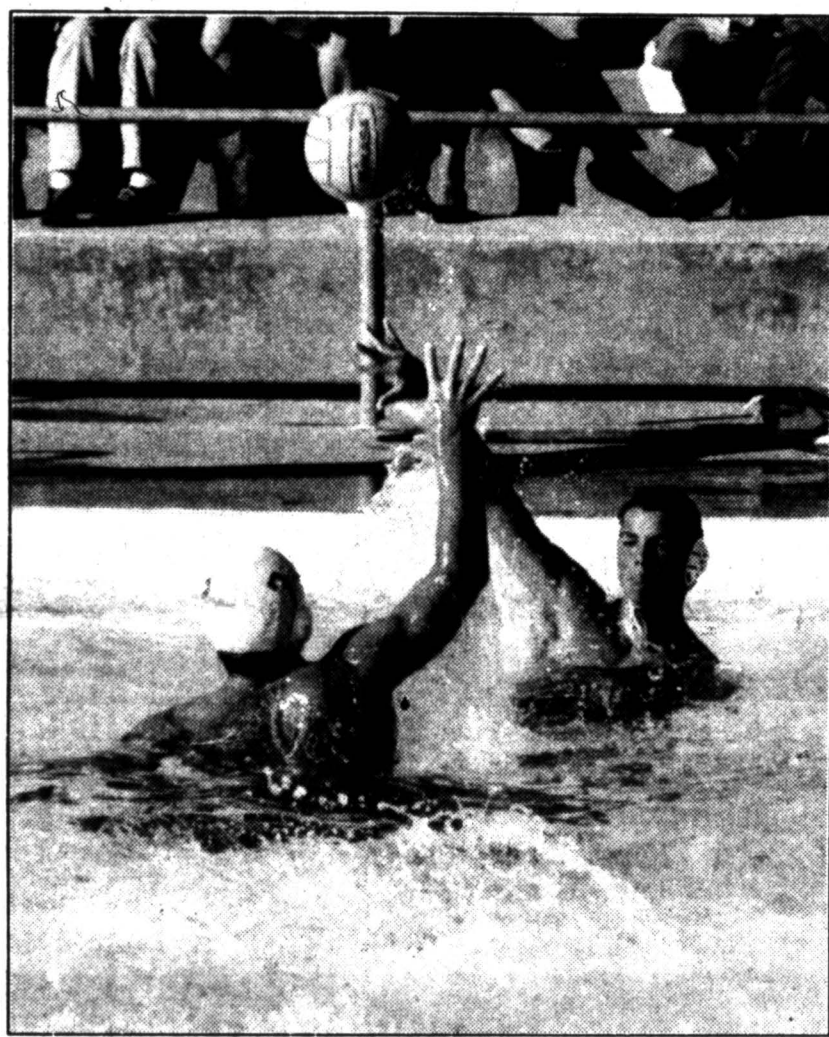

CARMEL HIGH School water polo coach Ed Sigourney works with reptiles. That's no slight on the amphibious athletes of his Padre polo team. This summer he will go to the Galapagos Islands to study real reptiles.

"I'm going to trap lizards," Sigourney said. He will study "different kinds of lizards — their speeds, populations, dynamics, temperatures..."

Sigourney will accompany a friend who has a research grant to study the islands. He said he did the same thing about five years ago in the desert near Tucson, Ariz.

Sigourney, a 1974 CHS graduate, is in his sixth year as Padre coach. He invests much of himself in the sport. He said it gave him much

About that color photo...

NO DOUBT many readers of The Carmel Pine Cone were surprised to see the newspaper publish its first-ever four-color photo that appeared on the front of the sports section in our Oct. 7 issue.

Perhaps no one was more surprised, however, than Cole Thompson, our contributing photographer and longtime photography instructor at Robert Louis Stevenson. Yes, Cole knew the brilliant photo of the five RLS students was to be published, but he didn't expect to receive credit for it.

While we have come to expect nothing but superb work from Cole, this time the credit goes elsewhere. And it goes to one of his prized students, Kristine Lin, who is a resident student from Taiwan. Kristine, an advanced placement arts student, is in her third year of photography at RLS.

Kristine should take comfort in knowing that The Pine Cone phone lines were ringing with praise for the photo that appeared on the front page of last week's second section. Only now, however, will readers know that it was Kristine's effort.

We offer our sincerest apologies to Kristine and to Cole, who was quick to correct the error on the RLS campus. One thing is for sure, though — we likely haven't seen the last of Kristine's photos in The Pine Cone. But next time, we'll make sure to give credit where credit is due.

King City next for Carmel after hard-fought setback to powerful Palma

Following an outstanding effort last week against Palma, the Carmel High Padres football team is riding high going into Friday night's game against King City.

When the Padres (2-2 overall, 0-1 in league) face King City (2-3, 1-1) at 7:30 p.m. on Friday in King City, they can expect to receive a stiff challenge from the Mustangs, who handed Alisal a loss last week.

The Padres have a good chance of beating King City, but they have to turn in good performances on both sides of the ball, and eliminate costly mistakes. Carmel also needs to be wary of King City's special teams, which returned two punts for touchdowns last week against Alisal, which handled Pacific Grove with surprising ease in its league opener.

Although the Padres lost 35-16 to the Chieftains Saturday, Oct. 9 in their first Mission Trail Athletic League game of the season, they had to feel good about their performance. In the previous three years, Carmel had scored only three points against Palma, while the Chieftains averaged nearly 50 points in each

RLS erases Emery, tackles Palma

WHILE THE Robert Louis Stevenson Pirates stomped visiting Emery High last weekend, they are well aware Friday night's clash with Palma will call upon them to play their very best if they have designs on beating the Mission Trail Athletic League powerhouse.

"We've been doing what we have to do to prepare for the game every day like usual," said Jeff Young, RLS head coach. "We know they have a tremendous program and reputation. However, on any given day, with the emotions high, with team spirit and unity, anything can happen. That is what is great about high school football."

RLS can take some consolation in knowing that Carmel High last Saturday gave Palma a solid battle, before falling 35-16. Palma brings a 2-0 MTAL record into the game; RLS is 0-1.

"This is an important game for the team being a league game," Young said.

The varsity game begins at 8 p.m. In last Saturday's 48-0 romp over its Emeryville-based foe, RLS let it game. John Geisler rebounded from a poor performance the previous week, completing 18 out of 34 passes for more than 200 yards and two touchdowns. Receiver Ben Thompson also had an excellent game picking up over 100 receiving yards and scoring two touchdowns.

Dan Silver had a good game leading the offensive line, which provided decent pass protection, and Chris Bleich came up big once again on defense. The defense as a whole also stood tough several times forcing the Chieftains to punt or attempt field goals, a contrast to past years when the Chieftains seemingly scored every time they touched the ball.

Were it not for several Carmel turnovers late in the game, the Padres had a real shot at winning. But Palma converted 21 points off Carmel giveaways to keep control of the game. Additionally, the Padres' failure to score from the one-yard line, coupled with two missed field goals, kept the game from being even closer.

week, the Padre runners hit the trail again Thursday, Oct. 7 against Robert Louis Stevenson and King City. Covering the 5-kilometer track in 20:32, Danielle Wall won the girls' race by nearly 45 seconds. Sophomore Denise Cardamon, who finished in eighth, and Jennifer Eyerman, who finished in 10th, allowed the Padres to finish second, just behind King City and well ahead of RLS.

Coach John Ables was most pleased with the performance of No. 4 runner Adele Woytak.

"Adele ran the best race of her life," Ables said. "She improved on her best time by eight seconds, which is quite a jump."

The boys' team, which came up just one point short of RLS, was paced by Bart Rowley's fourth-place time of 17:21. Following close behind were Jason Kistenmacher and Andy Cook, who finished sixth and seventh, respectively.

Much like the girls' race, Carmel received an excellent performance from an unexpected source. Foreign exchange student Fernando Serra ran in the fourth position and almost earned the Padres the extra point they needed.

- Girls Tennis
Winning two out three matches last week, Carmel continued on their season's goal of finishing in third place by themselves. The Padres opened the week with a 6-1 victory at Pacific Grove with Jessica Kattan and Corrina Tulua playing well.
- Girls Swimming
The Padre swimmers fell to Notre Dame High last Thursday, Oct. 7 by nine points. Carmel had no first place finishers, but Danielle Picard, Lauren Johnson, Lauren Picard and Dora Swearingan took second place in each of their races.

BEAT THE EDITOR

EVERY WEEK during the football season, Doug Thompson, managing editor of The Carmel Pine Cone, will challenge a guest forecaster in picking the top 10 games from the pro and collegiate slate.

LAST WEEK: For the second time in three weeks, the victor was determined on Monday night. But this time, The Editor wasn't on the winning end. When Buffalo humbled Houston, 35-7, Jeff Young, head coach of the Robert Louis Stevenson varsity football team, saw his record rise to 6-4, one game ahead of The Editor.

THIS WEEK: The next challenger is Craig Johnston, head coach of the Carmel High School varsity football team.

By MOLLY D. WHITEHEAD

THE CENTER for Photographic Art in Carmel can always be counted on for surprising, thought-provoking shows. Their current exhibit, "Selected Works: Five Women Artists," is no exception.

Whether or not one likes the work of the individual artists, this collection of photographs is well worth seeing. It offers some memorable images while challenging the traditional boundaries of the photographic medium.

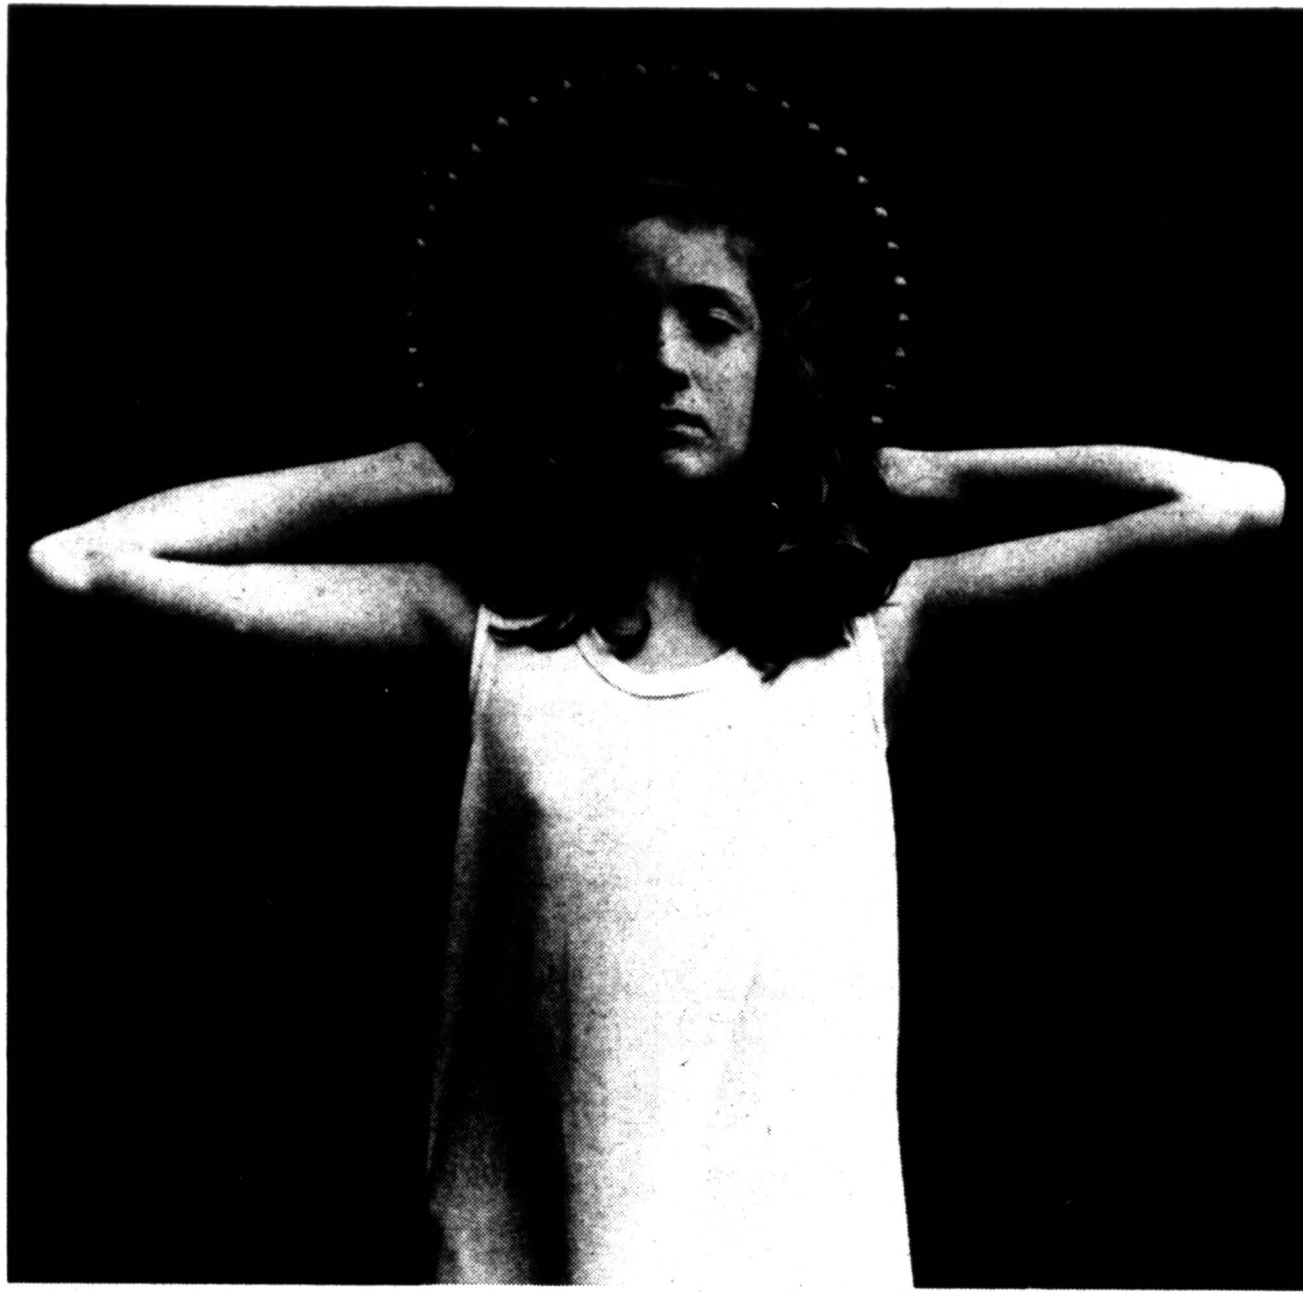

The work of Carolyn DeMeritt and Deborah Luster is superficially similar. Both women use large-format cameras to create documentary-style portraits of children and teenagers living in the rural American South. But the resemblance ends there.

DeMeritt's formal portraits of adolescent girls project a precocious, pouting sexuality reminiscent of Sally Mann's photographs of her children (shown at the Center earlier this year).

The inevitable comparison with Mann leaves DeMeritt, a resident of North Carolina, at a disadvantage; her photographs are less technically accomplished than Mann's and her subjects' poses less original.

For example, "Eliza and the Snake" depicts a girl in a white dress with a reptile coiling around her. The image is obvious and trite, a familiar theme without variations.

Luster's work, on the other hand, is striking in a subtle, understated way. Its power derives from its faithful, unob-trusive recording of facial expressions and effects of light. In "Wanoa's Mini Majorette," a young baton-twirler gazes directly at the viewer with a look of supreme composure and dignity.

The surrounding details, hands on hips with a gleaming baton threaded through dark fingers, complete the portrait without distracting from the focal point of the girl's face.

Luster, who lives on the coast of North Carolina, aims at "making 'unimportant pictures' of daily life in all its strange beauty" and succeeds beautifully. In "Septima with Tadpoles," light catches on the pale folds of a girl's dress and grazes the neck of a jar of polliwogs at her feet. Both legs and jar are slightly angled, lending a sense of motion to the portrait.

With the girl's upper body outside of the frame, Luster emphasizes her legs, and the tadpoles' lack of them. The photograph reminds one of the evolution of life from water to land, from swimming to walking. This, too, is an old story; but it is re-told in a slightly new and very lovely way.

Like DeMeritt and Luster, photographers Maggie Taylor and Helen Wallis reach different destinations from the same starting place. Taylor creates her still lifes by juxtaposing unusual objects and then photographing the resulting montages.

Rich in color and texture, her work is attention-grabbing and provocative. In "Don't Pester Me," a tiny, naked female figure crouches in the hull of a boat, trying to cover herself with her hands as a large bird with a bright orange eye and prominent beak looms above her.

In her artist's statement, Taylor, who lives in Florida, writes that "within each of us lives both poet and historian. I

Fires on the Water: Native Alaskan legends travel south to Santa Cruz

By MOLLY D. WHITEHEAD

ESKIMO TALES of love, revenge and creation will be brought to life by Naa Kahidi Theater, a Native Alaskan company performing for the first time in California on Saturday, Oct. 16. The group will present Fires on the Water, an anthology of legends from the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian tribes of southeast Alaska. Each story will be recounted by a single speaker, while other members of the company illustrate the tale through traditional dance and ritual.

'RAVEN ASKS his mother to let him play with the box of daylight,' from Fires on the Water.

Because such stories embody the rich cultural heritage of the tribes, members of the theater company work closely with clans to develop their performance pieces. All except one of the stories are narrated in English with Tlingit language woven through them. The performers are either Tlingit or Yup'ik Eskimo.

Most of the stories revolve around Raven, who is the agent of creation according to the Native Alaskan myth. "The Box of Daylight" tells how Raven relieves a rich old man of four treasures kept in boxes (the sun, moon, stars and daylight) and thus brings illumination to the world. "Raven Tries to Seduce a Woman" is a ribald Tsimshian tale.

Another story, "Carayak," centers around a woman who becomes a bear to exact punish her husband, who has married another woman. The program ends with "The White Sail," a compelling account of the coming of the white man.

'Jurassic Park' comes to the beach: Dinosaurs thunder down Boardwalk

A DEINONYCHUS Slasher will thunder down the Santa Cruz boardwalk this weekend accompanied by 14 other dinosaurs of various ilks and ages. A representative of the velociraptors, who starred in the Stephen Spielberg movie, "Jurassic Park," will be part of the exhibit sponsored by the Santa Cruz City Museum of Natural History.

The show will feature life-sized robotic creatures surrounded by replicas of prehistoric trees and plants. The dinosaurs will talk and walk, children and babies in tow. Each dinosaur was constructed as realistically as possible based on current scientific knowledge of bone structure, skin texture, movements, sounds and general appearance.

The dinosaurs were provided by Dinamation International, a company based in Irvine.

Special, hands-on exhibits will include "Dig a Fossil," "Rub a Dino," "Dinamation Video," and "Paleontology Table."

The exhibit is designed to increase public awareness of natural history, conservation, extinction and science. "Dinosaurs at the Beach" will run from Oct. 16 through Jan. 23 on the Santa Cruz Beach Boardwalk. Tickets are $5 for adults, $3 for children. Information is available by calling 429-3760.

'Femicide' explores political causes of woman-killing

By MIKE SCHMITZ

WIFE KILLERS and serial murderers are usually thought of as crazed monsters. "Sick" and "aberrant" are two of the milder terms. No "normal" man would do such things. But Femicide: The Politics of Woman Killing, edited by Jill Radford and Diana Russell, contends that woman-killing is a logical component of a male-ruled society which will do anything to keep women in line.

This book is a long-awaited follow-up to Susan Brownmiller's groundbreaking work of the '70s, Against Our Will, which stated that rape is part of a social-control mechanism to keep women subservient to men.

Risk is close to home

Femicide, an anthology of writings from three cultures, says that women are most at risk from the men who claim to love and adore them. "It is not the stranger you lock out of your house at night but the men locked in with their wives who are most likely to murder," writes Sue Lees, one of the book's contributors.

This grim compendium combines chilling case studies and official data to indicate the tolerance of woman-killing in America, Britain and India. In most cases, the writers contend, men were given minimal sentences or even set free if they were provoked by something as trivial as "nagging".

Society blames victims

Woman-blaming is often used to exonerate the murderer. Women who kill their husbands after years of physical abuse are generally given long prison terms. Moreover, murderers are sometimes mythologized into folk heroes, such as Jack the Ripper, especially if their victims are deemed unworthy of life (prostitutes or any woman with a "bad" reputation).

Femicide maintains that a female victim is mourned only if she falls into a sainted category, such as innocent schoolgirl. Only then does society feel any sense of rage toward the killer.

One-note theme

On first reading, the book and its radical-feminist point of view make sense. But a little reflection reveals the book's pervasive one-note theme. It is assumed, for instance, that every murder of a woman is committed solely because she is a woman.

Therefore, the numbers attributed to femicide as a hate crime are greatly inflated, since they do not separate each victim from the circumstances (was she killed only because she was a woman, or because she was a verbally abusive person who threw things at the man she lived with?)

Interpersonal causes slighted

Throughout the book, only the political causes of woman-killing are given credence. Interpersonal causes are downplayed.

We know, for instance, that murderers generally have tragic early childhoods and abusive mothers. Is that "woman-blaming" or fact?

No matter; the writers of Femicide assume that anyone who fails to take their radical perspective is part of the sexist hierarchy that oppresses women. It's the sort of conclusion Rush Limbaugh loves to hear from feminists.

The editors of the book lament that femicide as a hate-crime category has not become part of public consciousness. That may be because the public is more sophisticated than their analysis.

Protesting woman-killing is indeed admirable, but most women are undoubtedly more concerned about whether they personally are at risk with any man they may be close to.

On that human, interpersonal level, the society-blaming, radical authors of Femicide are silent.

Wharf Theatre's 'Same Time' is a joyous celebration of love

By JAMES P. KINNEY

SEEING THE Wharf Theatre's production of Bernard Slade's romantic comedy, Same Time, Next Year this past weekend reminded me again what an important place community theater occupies in a place which considers itself vibrant and alive. The performance's production did not smack of a big budget. The two performers were not well-known theatrical names off the peninsula. But Same Time, Next Year was well-directed, well-performed and well-produced with an attractive, functional set.

The premise of Slade's play is a simple, original one. Two decent, married adults meet by chance on a weekend away from home, connecting physically and emotionally. Their relationship continues for a span of 25 years. During that time wars are fought and won or lost; societal changes sweep across the nation; children are born and children die.

Yet the relationship endures, deepens and even blossoms into a friendship that encompasses the spouses to which each is committed the other 362 days of the year. Her name is Doris. His name is George. She attends an annual religious retreat. He comes west each year from the East Coast to put an old friend's books in order.

Their meeting place is a guest cottage at a country inn somewhere in Northern California. Each year one tells the other a good and not-so-good story about his or her mate. They show each other photos of their children. We check in on them every five years from 1951 to 1975.

Regular married couples

During that span he changes from C.P.A. to piano player in a singles' bar. She shifts from housewife who didn't graduate high school to long-haired flower child to self-confident businesswoman running a catering company. They argue, make up, question, fight, make love and try continuously to understand each other better. Just like regular married couples.

Phyllis McChesney brings to Doris a lively, bright femininity, moving from timid to bold, comic to troubled, needy to nurturing smoothly and with assurance. Kent Carlson as George knows how to mine the familiar comic lode of the male ego's fragility, but remains imaginative and consistent through the emotional twists and turns the part requires. Both are attractive and convincing in their roles.

Director Gina Welch-Hagen cleverly turns set changes into part of the action with Dale E. Wynn as the aging innkeeper making the bed, removing dishes and re-arranging plants and flowers to show the passing of the years. Wynn got much deserved applause after his appearances. The play is produced by much-revered Angelo DiGirolamo.

Some see Same Time, Next Year as a dated piece and certainly its time passage through the '50s, '60s and '70s would seem to suggest that view. But seen another way, this play is a joyous, positive celebration of how men and women love, how they enjoy, question, aggravate and struggle to understand each other and that, I submit, is a theme timeless and eternal.

Musicians stage benefit for local girl's medical bills

THE ABDUCTION of 12-year-old Polly Klaas at knifepoint from her Petaluma home — her grandparents live in Carmel and Pebble Beach — continues hitting with the impact of baseball bats. Or terror.

"I've got two teenage daughters at home," a bus driver told me the other night. "They don't like it much, but you can bet I'm watching them like a hawk."

"There's a real media blitz (about Polly)," a local jazz vocalist said over our coffees at The Crossroads. "All I can think of is the little kid. She needs prayers. This tragedy makes the value of young life so obvious that it can't be overlooked. How come we need tragedy to see the kids for what they really are?"

I have no bigtime answers. But it's right and proper to express gratitude when musicians do gather in celebration of young life. Such an event will occur from 6 p.m. until midnight Sunday, Oct. 17, at The Club of downtown Monterey.

Volunteer artists will stage a benefit for Whitney Clark's medical expenses. She's seven and has started first grade at Pacific Grove's Robert Down School.

Benefit for Whitney Clark 6 p.m. to midnight Oct. 17

"Whitney was born with a rare syndrome," one organizer said. "This affected her sight, hearing, muscles and bone structure — she wasn't expected to live more than a few days."

Heaven, however, plays by rules more radiant than we can imagine. "Today," the word was, "life will be so much better for her when she has hearing aids and has undergone several operations."

Donation at the door: $20 per. All proceeds will be held in trust by First Interstate Bank.

On the gig will be Brazilian keyboardist and composer Weber Drummond, the Roger Eddy Band, Absolute Sizzle Dance Company, Rhino Blossom (tight blues group) "and many more." Thanks for your talents and your caring, folks.

Tickets may be bought beforehand at Do Re Mi Music, the restaurant at Mission Ranch, Lighthouse Records, Bay Books. And they'll be available at The Club that night, of course.

Meanwhile, a great gang of jazz people turned out at The Grand in Manhattan last week to play a benefit for the four children of late bassist Jaco Pastorius. Jaco changed the sound of American music before he fell into alcoholism and was fatally beaten in an alley.

Among the dozens of players at the tribute to him: Lew Soloff, Alex Foster, Ronnie Cuber, Dave Bargeron, Bones Malone, French hornists John Clark and Alex Brofski, Bobby Moses, Kenwood Dennard, Don Alias, Jerry Gonzales, Manolo Badrena. Also Othello Molineaux (steel drums), Mike Urbaniak (violin) — and brilliant keyboardist Gil Goldstein on accordion.

The program was made up of Pastorius compositions.

Another deeply human story comes from deejay Steve Kane at KAZU Public Radio. On Wednesday morning, Oct. 20, his entire show will consist of jazz tracks favored by Steve's late father — the super storyteller Sy Kane. A Joyful Noise runs from 6 to 9 a.m. Sy would have been 72 years old on Oct. 16 had he not died in April 1993.

"As you know," Steve said, "Sy loved Miles Davis, Stan Getz, Sarah (Vaughan), Sinatra. So I'll play their things, with many others, and help keep this good man's spirit alive."

Before retiring to Northern California, Sy was a New York cabbie who loved jazz and sometimes drove its stars from place to place. He was a real pal — one of the funniest and gutsiest men I've met.

Meanwhile, Steve's mother (Min Kane) shows true grit. She never had driven an auto, but took lessons and now has won her license at 68 years of age.

Michael's news

Michael Chatfield steers an unusual professional course: bassist and adman. He says he's part of a new blues unit — Red Beans and Rice — which had its debut at Monterey Brewing Company near Cannery Row.

His partners include Big Steve (vocals), Mike Vernon (harmonica), KAZU's Sherman Lee (guitar), Jason McIntosh (drums), Russell Dawkins (keyboards).

While we're in the neighborhood, Doc Ricketts' Lab has booked Willie and Lobo ("acoustic world beat") for Oct. 30. Door charge on the Saturday night — $5 per.

Michael II

Producer Dave Svec says singer and songsmith Michael Franks will kick off a local show at 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 15. Vocalist Leslie Letven will open for him, Dave adds, in the Hyatt Regency Grand Ballroom.

Svec says the Franks appearance will inaugurate a Hyatt Regency series. Tickets cost $23.50 apiece and are available at Do Re Mi Music if you wish advance treatment.

Short takes

—Don't forget vocalist Kitty Margolis and tenorman Red Holloway at Soquel's Chardonnay Winery on Sunday, Oct. 17. The gig starts at 1 p.m. and has fine pianist Dick Hindman, Seward McCain on bass, drummer Scott Morris. The $24 not-for-profit contribution includes a "gourmet buffet" and beverages. Call 1-476-7232.

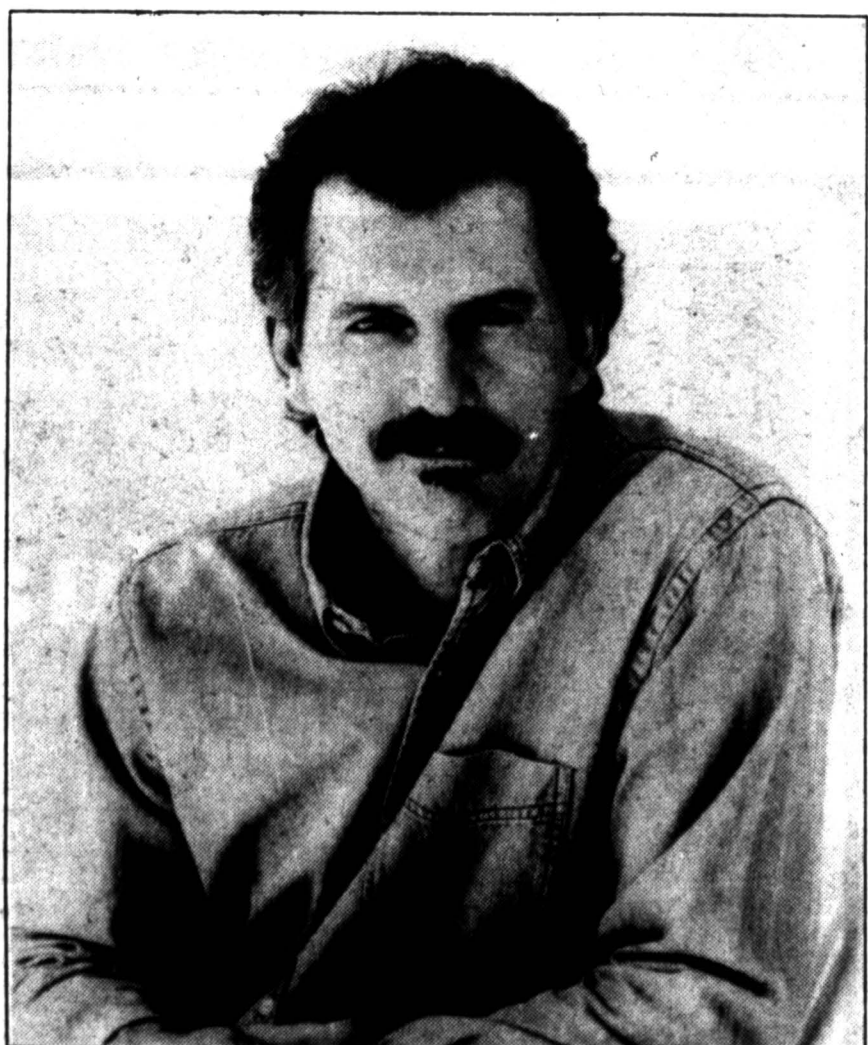

—At Kuumbwa Jazz Center on Monday night, Oct. 18: Chicago firebrands Roscoe Mitchell and Malachi Favors Maghostut.

Starts at 8; $13 advance (Ticketmaster) or $15 at the door.

For Friday night, Oct. 15 — Marcos Silva and Intersection with singer Claudia Villela. Real bargain. Just $5 per at the door only.

BRAZILIAN VOCALIST Claudia Villela will perform on Oct. 15 at Kuumbwa Center.

MICHAEL FRANKS will sing highly literate lyrics on Friday, Oct. 15 at the Hyatt Regency in Monterey.

Carmel Music Society opens season with 'freshness and spirit'

By NATHALIE PLOTKIN

AFTER TWO months of musical drought, the Carmel Music Society changed the climate with the first event of their 1993-94 concert season. Setting a high standard of achievement, two renowned artists, Paula Robison on the flute and Ruth Laredo on the piano, gave a splendid account of themselves on Thursday evening at Carmel's Sunset Theater. The program of delightfully appealing 20th century music was an eminently pleasing one, full of freshness and spirit.

Serious, sensitive musicians

Though the first impression was of carefully crafted commercial showmanship and a mention of the "Ruth and Paula Show" underlined this idea, it took just a few minutes to get past the feeling of superficiality and glitz. Robison and Laredo are serious, sensitive master musicians whose obvious abilities were quickly proven.

The Poulenc "Sonata for Flute and Piano" (1958) is a charming work and a favorite among flutists for its flowing melodic lines and witty musical commentaries. The soaring, yet haunting opening lines stated with floating tone and supported by an impressionistic piano sound, were confident and serene, setting off the mellow mood of the movement.

The elegance of the playing in the slow movement with its warm eloquence masterfully stated evoked a similarity of mood to a Baroque arioso. Then, in playful contrast, the Presto literally tootled away, but on a large virtuoso scale.

Insightful performance

To commemorate the 50th anniversary of the death of Sergei Rachmaninoff, Laredo played three of his piano preludes. The one in C Sharp Minor Op. 3, No. 2, was given an insightful and resonant performance, restoring importance to its ubiquitously familiar lines. Also very well played were the Op. 32, No. 5 in G Major and the Op. 32, No. 12 in C Sharp Minor.

Robison and Laredo joined forces in the "Siete Canciones Populares Espanola" by Falla. These brief pieces are colorful and evocative.

The tender flute tone on the Asturiana's keening vocal line, the muttering piano accompaniment of the Seguidilla, the excitement of the Jota, the Moorish ululations of the Nana, just to choose some of the high points, were all excellently projected.

Theatrical touch

Of course, playing the unaccompanied flute "Syrinx" of Debussy in the darkened hall was a theatrical touch, but it did focus one's attention on some superlative tone and breath control.

The Prokofiev "Sonata in D Major" Op. 94, begins with a lyrical and grandly lofted theme. The large expressive flute tone and virtuosopiano part were melded into a sensitive unit fully at the service of the music. It was an authoritative traversal.

The Scherzo was small scale and surprisingly airy, but then went on in brilliant good humor. The tempo was unusually spacious, which drew some of the bite out of the music, but left room for a sparkling coda.

The Andante was given an introspective, almost improvisational character. Both instruments created a fragile, dreamlike tone as they traced an intricately embroidered lullaby.

Lyricism and heroics

In the final movement, the artists ranged from lyricism to technical heroics in superior fashion, leading the enthusiastic audience to demand encores. The artists played the Rachmaninoff Vocalise and the same G Major Prelude heard earlier in the solo piano version.

Genius is rare.

Fine art enriches our lives.

'Transformations' and 'Conscious Molecule' to open at Cherry Center

A JOINT exhibit of nature photography by Robert Almeida and monoprints by Jean Kellogg Dickie will open on Saturday, Oct. 16 at the Carl Cherry Center for the Arts in Carmel.

According to Almeida, "To sense [nature's] beauty and to try to give my interpretation of the experience is the basis of my photographs."

Kellogg Dickie discovered the design technique she used for 'The Conscious Molecule' when rain tarnished a pattern on a polished copper plate lying near her printing press.

A reception for the artists will be held from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 16 at the Cherry Center.

think of these photographs as personal fictions created from photographed facts. While these images suggest narratives, they allow the viewer to respond on an individual basis."

The only way in which Taylor deviates from her goal of challenging the viewer is the inclusion of explanatory phrases within the photographs. These internal captions, which also serve as the titles of her images, detract from the mystery and otherworldliness which are central to Taylor's work.

Helen Wallis also uses the technique of collage to create surreal images. Her source material encompasses photographs, meteorological charts and pictures from art history books. Celestial images and themes figure prominently in her dreamscapes. In "Kabuki #1," a woman's figure in a red kimono emerges from the lower left corner, a fan in her hand. A planet, perhaps the earth, seems to rise from behind a sheet of rice paper. This image exerts a subtly magnetic pull on the viewer, much as a dream casts its spell without unveiling its meaning.

Wallis, a Santa Cruz resident, is the only local photographer represented in this show. She comments that "photography is the touchstone to which I always return, no matter how afield my ventures into the worlds of fantasy and the imagination may carry me."

The fifth photographer, Alma Davenport de la Ronde, exhibits gum bichromate prints, mostly of flowers, which vary in their effectiveness. Davenport de la Ronde, who received a Master of Fine Arts degree from Rhode Island School of Design, has enhanced the 19th century process of bichromate with multiple colors. This procedure, which involves color separations and emulsions, is time-consuming; a single print can require two weeks of work. The final image, which is unique, resembles a pointillist painting more than a photograph.

Although some of Davenport de la Ronde's work looks washed out, the brighter images are quite lovely. They glow with a soft luminescence belonging to neither painting nor photography, but to some ethereal space in between.

All in all, this diverse and exciting show merits a wide audience; there's something for everyone here. The Center for Photographic Art has done itself proud once again.

Stone carving demo to open one-man show by Bill Kalton

ABSTRACT STONE carver Bill Kalton will demonstrate his sculpting techniques from 6 to 9 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 15 at the Ludwa Studio in Carmel. The demonstration will open Kalton's first one-man show of abstract stone sculpture, which consists of almost 40 sculptures. These pieces were carved directly into stone without the use of models, as Kalton believes that the stone yields its own hidden forms through the carving process.

Kalton derives his forms from observations of indigenous cultures, art, architecture and natural phenomena. His show will run from Oct. 15 through Nov. 30 at the Ludwa Studio on Mission between Fifth and Sixth Streets in Carmel.

We invite you to treat yourself at one of these fine Pacific Grove restaurants!

Murray's animal portraits on display at Zantman Galleries

ANIMALS AND Indian landscapes are the subjects of Richard Murray's one-man show opening on Saturday, Oct. 16 at Zantman Art Galleries in Carmel. More than 50 new paintings will be included in the exhibit.

Murray has painted in many genres, but his animal portraits remain closest to his heart.

His goal is "to portray the basic essence of these animals — not the stereotypes men impose on them."

Over the past two years, Murray has painted nearly 300 animals. He is concerned the future of many of these creatures, saying, "If God has given all these animals to man, to do to them what he likes, a lot of stewardship is required, and we obviously haven't done well with that."

Murray's show will have an opening reception from 3 to 6 p.m. on Oct. 16 at Zantman, located on Sixth and Mission in Carmel.

Father and son duo will open symphony season

CONDUCTOR CLARK Suttle and Monterey County Symphony begin their 1993-94 concert season with a historic program at 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 17, and 8 p.m. Monday, Oct. 18, in Sunset Center.

Heard on those evenings will be performances of Mendelssohn's Concerto in A Major for Two Pianos and Orchestra by Ukrainian father and son pianists Alexander (the parent) and Alex Slobodyanik.

Tickets are available "in all price categories for all concerts," according to Symphony spokesperson Susan Koza. Advance purchase is recommended; additional information is available by calling 1-800-698-1138.

Koza says this will be the first time in the history of classical music programs in Monterey County that a concerto for two concert grand pianos and a full symphony orchestra will be offered.

Last appearing with Monterey County Symphony in January 1991, Alexander Slobodyanik "has attracted a larger and larger audience for his sensitive interpretation, wide range of repertoire and technical bravura," Koza says.

His 18-year-old son, Alex, is counted among the brightest stars of his generation. He won first prize and the Ivo Pogorelich Grand Prize at the 1991 Stravinsky Awards International Piano Competition.

PIANIST STEFAN Warzycki will celebrate his return to this area from an Eastern European tour with a recital starting at 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 16, at the Monterey Church of Religious Science on Pacific and West Franklin.

De Niro's directing debut brings a standard mob saga to life

By CRAIG ARNOTT

THE SETTING is the Bronx, 1968 — a dingy bar in an Italian neighborhood.

Inside are a few members of the local mob, lending an atmosphere of lazy menace. In walks a loud and dusty group of Hell's Angels. What could possibly develop in here that has not already been seen on screen so many times before?

The confrontation might be dreadfully obvious, but it is handled in such a thoughtful and unexpected way that A Bronx Tale rises above the typical my-rotten-childhood films, of which there have been so many.

While other mob portraits, namely Goodfellas (which, incidentally, starred De Niro), seek truth in stylized violence, this film manages to look at the ravages of the disease. Chaz Palmenteri, who wrote the screenplay after successfully staging A Bronx Tale as a one-man play, develops the story carefully and with attention to allowing the action to unfold naturally, often with well-chosen bits of humor and classic confrontations, like the Hell's Angels scene. There are enough references to pop culture — from baseball to jazz — to give the audience a feeling for the climate.

As director, De Niro's work is assured and expressive. The Bronx seems shot from a local's point of view, as the camera stays at ground level and peeks around corners.

Slowing the pace.

He also has a fondness for closeups, conveying the characters' emotions precisely, although this technique can get tiresome. Moreover, the scenes between Brancato and Hicks, while genuinely felt, betray a heavy hand that slows the film's pace.

And here is another complaint. As the soundtrack includes classic songs from the early to late '60s, some of which are played so closely together they interrupt the action on the screen.

Chilling moment

However, the selection of The Moody Blues' gentle "Nights In White Satin" in the context of a street ambush makes the scene more compelling.

The performances range from standard to mesmerizing. Palmenteri, with his large frame and cold stare, is frighteningly real in his portrayal of Sonny. De Niro gives Lorenzo a tragic helplessness. Disappointingly, Brancato seems stiff and wooden as the older Calogero.

In all, A Bronx Tale is a rarity amid a familiar genre. It is a smart little film that seeks to explain, not assault.

detail and atmosphere.

The audience is introduced to Colagero (Francis Capra) as an impressionable nine-year-old Bronx denizen. His father Lorenzo (De Niro) drives a bus and tries his best to instill decency in his son.

This proves a challenging task considering the family is living two doors away from a local bar that doubles as mob headquarters. Colagero is drawn to the style and bravado of the men in the bar, and he mimics their speech and hand gestures when he's with his friends.

Bearing witness

After witnessing a brutal shooting on the street, Colagero refuses to identify the killer. Consequently, he is befriended by the mob boss, and, against Lorenzo's wishes, Calogero becomes a sort of mob mascot.

As boy becomes young man, Calogero (now played by Lillo Brancato), drifts further into the underworld. He respects Sonny's advice more than his father's and his communication consists of boasts and threats.

A Bronx Tale escapes sermonizing overtones by

Call it a woman's movie — but these are universal sentiments in 'Joy Luck Club'

By SUSAN CANTRELL

IF YOU and your mother are estranged, go see The Joy Luck Club. Meet there and end up walking out together — no matter how long it's been since you've spoken.

And if you and mom are close, you'll be Siamese twins after watching this stirring movie.

This one gets you where you live. With non-stop grace, it tells the truth about love: it's everything at once — shame, hurt, hate and happiness, all mixed with humor.

Boys need not apply.

I wouldn't deign to know how it feels to be a son, nor should a man assume he can understand this film completely. Remember, men are from Mars, women are from Venus.

Some favorite scenes: one daughter is grasping at her rigid mother, whose Old World ideas have kept a wall between them. Now, midway through this accusation match, both of them suddenly break into laughter.

Another favorite: Among the bevy of gorgeous Chinese women, one daughter stands in the kitchen, accusing her mother of caring only how her daughter appears to the Joneses. She can never measure up. "You don't see me," daughter implores.

After a barrage of angry words, the stoic mother rises above her own expectations and sees her daughter's true self, exclaiming, "I see you. I see you."

Every woman in the house, including me, was blowing her nose.

Although the story spans three generations of Chinese and Chinese-American culture, it proves — with shining clarity — that certain kinds of feelings are universal. And that love addiction and abuse are handed down.

For example, for love and lust, grandmother had sold herself into servitude as a Chinese concubine, cowtowing to a wealthy businessman's three other wives.

Two generations later, her granddaughter foregoes her own identity to marry an abusive, philandering husband. The woman finally comes to. And, praise be, so does the husband. This movie has, for women, what Woody Allen's Husbands and Wives didn't seem to have for anyone — hope.

Czech mandolin maestro Zenkl will strum at Portofino in Pacific Grove

CZECHOSLOVAKIAN MANDOLIN master Radim Zenkl will play at 8 p.m. on Oct. 16 at Portofino Cafe in Pacific Grove. Zenkl's music is highly eclectic, crossing the borders of string jazz, new age, bluegrass, flamenco, Eastern European music and others.

Zenkl defected from Czechoslovakia a few months before the fall of communism there and now lives in the Bay Area. In his native land he led several bands, but grew increasingly frustrated with government restrictions on artistic expression.

"We were only allowed to play instrumental music on the radio because the government was afraid that we might be sending anti-communist messages out through song lyrics. Even some of the instrumental pieces were prohibited, as they sounded 'too western.'"

Zenkl has performed with such major artists as Jerry Garcia, Bela Fleck & The Flecktones and David Grisman Quintet.

Candlelit classical guitar concert to be performed by Farrell on Oct. 20

GUITARIST TERRENCE Farrell will play a candlelit concert of chamber music at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 20, in Monterey's Colton Hall.

The event is open to the public free of charge. Reservations are required and can be made by calling 646-5640.

The program will be varied, including selections from Bach, Schubert and Gershwin.

The concert also will comprise pieces "influenced by traditional Spanish and Latin American music," Farrell says.

He has played in more than 20 nations and has conducted masters programs in Europe and this country.

The evening is sponsored by Colton Hall Museum, the Cultural Arts Commission and City of Monterey.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA
CITY COUNCIL
ORDINANCE NO. 93-26

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING TITLE 17 OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE RELATED TO THE COMMERCIAL DISTRICTS INCLUDING THE ALLOWED USES AND THE STANDARDS FOR USES WITHIN EACH COMMERCIAL ZONE, DESIGN STANDARDS FOR COMMERCIAL PROPERTY, AND THE PRE-ZONING OF PROPERTY

WHEREAS, in 1992 the City concluded a study of commercial zoning and adopted Ordinance No. 92-23 revising District boundaries and allowed uses, and making other changes to the administration of land use and design; and

WHEREAS, this ordinance was challenged by petition and was subject to a voter referendum; and

WHEREAS, on 3 June 1993 the voters approved the ordinance thereby establishing it as part of the City's zoning regulations; and

WHEREAS, during the pre-elections campaign, public debate revealed the potential to improve one or more provisions of the ordinance to better implement the General Plan of the City; and

WHEREAS, the City Council directed the Planning Commission to prepare an ordinance to revise Ordinance No. 92-23 and to hold a public hearing; and

WHEREAS, the Planning Commission reviewed the ordinance at a public hearing on 11 August 1993 and found it to be consistent with the City's General Plan; and

WHEREAS, adoption of this ordinance will better serve the interests of the community and promote the health, safety and general welfare of the City.

NOW, THEREFORE, the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea does ordain as follows:

Section One. Ancillary Uses. Municipal Code Section 17.10.010.D shall be amended as shown below:

D. The following limitations shall apply to ancillary uses:

1. Unless otherwise specified in the Notes to the Use Charts, no ancillary use shall be established in conjunction with any primary commercial use unless the ancillary use is also a permitted use in the district in which the primary use is established or is permitted through the approval of a conditional use permit.

2. Ancillary uses shall be limited to no more than ten percent of the floor area of the established primary use, and ten percent of the window display area(s) unless otherwise specified in the Notes to the Use Charts or a use permit is obtained.

3. Ancillary uses shall only be permitted if compatible with the primary use. One (1) ancillary use may be established in conjunction with a primary use when the ancillary use is identified as an allowed ancillary use for the primary use in the Notes to the Use Charts appearing in Section 17.06.036. (Ord. 93-26 1, 1993).

4. Determinations of compatibility for other ancillary uses shall be made by the Director of the Department of Community Planning and Building based on the Standard Industrial Classification (SIC) Manual and the characteristics of the proposed use. Decisions on ancillary uses may be referred to the Planning Commission when, in the opinion of the Director, the compatibility of a proposed ancillary use is unclear. (Ord. 93-26 1, 1993).

5. Requests for the establishment of more than one ancillary use with a primary use or to establish one or more ancillary uses with a proportion of more than 10% of the primary use shall only be approved upon the granting of a use permit by the Planning Commission through the adoption of findings established in Section 17.18.025. (Ord. 93-26 1, 1993; Ord. 89-19 3, 1989)

Section Two. Section 17.06.034.E of the Municipal Code shall be amended as follows:

E. Except for ancillary uses in conformance with Section 17.10.010.D, and for uses explicitly allowed in combination with other uses as established in the Notes to the Use Charts in Section 17.06.036, a use that combines activities falling within two or more SIC designations specified in the use charts shall require a use permit. A use that combines activities falling within two or more SIC designations specified in the use charts shall not be permitted if any one of the activities is a prohibited use. (Ord. 93-26 2, 1993; Ord. 92-23 1, 1992.)

Section Three. Design Regulations. Municipal Code Section 17.12.085 shall be amended as shown below:

17.12.085 General Design Regulations. In order to protect the unique qualities and characteristics of the commercial district, all exterior changes to commercial structures located within the Central Commercial (CC), Service Commercial (SC), and Residential and Limited Commercial (RL) Land Use Districts shall be subject to the following design regulations: (Ord. 93-26 3, 1993; Ord. 92-23 3, 1992.)

A. That the modification shall respect and be compatible with the architectural character and scale of the existing structure.

B. That the modification shall complement the existing scale and design of the commercial district.

C. That the modification shall not create visual clutter through excessive number of, or uncomplimentary, design elements.

D. That the modification shall not incorporate color, materials, patterns or other design elements that:

1. call attention to the storefront;
2. create a form of advertising or sign;
3. would render the storefront unusable by a subsequent business occupant without further remodeling; or
4. create a standardized identification with a particular business use.

E. That openings including doors and windows shall be in proportion to the storefront and structure.

F. That the amount of glass transparency along the storefront is limited to prevent an excessive amount of interior light and/or glare to shed onto the public right-of-way.

G. That the use of recessed entrances, Dutch doors, wood, framed windows, decorative moldings, offset building facades, and landscaping that create pedestrian interest are encouraged.

Section Four. Motel Uses. Municipal Code Section 17.10.010.M shall be amended as shown below:

M. Except as provided for legally established motel units in Sections 17.06.036 and 17.18.100, all newly constructed second story floor area, including area in new buildings, remodeled buildings and replacement or reconstructed buildings, shall be occupied by residential dwellings only and shall not be used for any commercial land use. (Ord. 93-26 4, 1993).

Section Five. Annexation. Section 17.08.080 related to pre-zoning of land prior to annexation is hereby repealed in its entirety.

Section Six. Commercial Use Charts. Municipal Code Section 17.06.036 shall be amended as shown in Exhibit A attached here.

Section Seven. Definitions. The following definitions shall be deleted from Section 17.06.040 in their entirety.

B. Antique (593). A retail store selling merchandise that is old or rare. The age of the merchandise will be dependent on the type of merchandise.

C. Apparel (56). A retail store selling new clothing and related articles for personal wear and adornment.

D. Art Dealers (5999). A retail store selling art objects including but not limited to paintings, graphic arts, photography and sculpture.

E. Arts and Crafts (5999). A retail store selling handcrafted merchandise for home decoration and/or home furnishings of one of the following materials: pottery, glass, fabric, paper, wood, fiber, or ceramics.

G. Motorcycles, Mopeds and Parts (5571). A retail store selling motorcycles, scooters, mopeds and parts.

H. Building Materials, Hardware and Garden Supplies (52). A retail store selling lumber and other building materials, paint, glass and wallpaper; hardware items such as tools, housewares, appliances and locks; lawn and garden supplies.

K. Drinking Place (5813). A use selling primarily alcoholic beverages on the business premises for immediate consumption.

L. Drug, Cosmetic, Soaps and Scents (591). A retail store selling prescription drugs and medicines, cosmetics, toiletries, tobacco, magazines and soaps and/or scents.

M. Eating Place (5812).

4. Lunch Counter. A business devoted to the serving of prepared food or beverages to the public in such a manner that said food or beverages would customarily be consumed while seated at a counter.

7. Soda Fountain. A business devoted exclusively to the preparation and serving of nonalcoholic beverages, ice cream dishes, confections, and desserts for consumption on the premises by persons seated at tables or counters.

0. Food Stores Full-Line (54). A retail food market providing a full range of food and grocery items including meats, poultry, produce, dairy products, canned and dried goods for home preparation.

P. Food Stores Specialty (54). A retail food market providing limited food items including but not limited to coffee, tea, bakery goods, candy, nuts, or delicatessen items for homeconsumption.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA CITY COUNCIL ORDINANCE NO. 93-25

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING SECTION 17.24.250 OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE RELATED TO FENCES AND WALLS

WHEREAS, Section 17.24.250 of the Municipal Code contains standards for the construction of fences in walls in the R-I Land Use District; and

WHEREAS, the intent of these standards is to ensure that new fences and walls are designed to allow visual relief from the public right-of-way while providing a sufficient barrier for privacy; and

WHEREAS, it has become necessary to amend this Section to remove unclear text which has resulted in inconsistent application of the standards for fences and walls; and

WHEREAS, the Planning Commission reviewed the Ordinance on 28 July 1993 and conducted a public hearing to allow comments and suggestions for the new text.

NOW, THEREFORE, the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea does ordain as follows:

Section One. That Section 17.24.250 of the Municipal Code be deleted in its entirety and replaced with the following:

17.24.250 Fences and Walls. The following standards shall apply to the approval and construction of new fences and walls and to the substantial replacement or reconstruction of existing fences and walls. Replacement or reconstruction shall be deemed substantial when the linear distance of new construction equals or exceeds fifty percent (50%) of the distance of existing construction.

A. Definition.

1. Fence. A structural barrier made of wood or wrought iron.

2. Wall. A structural barrier made of masonry such as mortared natural granite, shale, sandstone, masonry faced with wood, or concrete block with a cement plaster finish.

B. Maximum Height. Except as provided below in Subsection D (Approval), fences and walls meeting the following height limits may be constructed in the R-I Land Use District.

	Within Front Yard Setbacks	Within Side Yard/ Rear Setbacks	Behind All Setbacks
Fences	6 feet	6 feet	8 feet
Walls	4 feet	6 feet	6 feet

Height is measured vertically between all points on the fence or wall and the more restrictive of existing or finished grade, whichever results in a lower height.

C. Corner and Double Frontage Lots. Side yards or rear yards adjacent to a public street shall be treated as front yards for all fence and wall standards. New fences and walls on corner lots shall be reviewed by the Planning Director in consultation with the Police Department to ensure a safe line of sight for intersecting lanes of traffic.

D. Approval. Fences and walls meeting the following standards and the Residential Design Guidelines may be approved by the Director of Community Planning and Building. Fences and walls not meeting these standards and the Design Guidelines shall require Planning Commission review. The Director may refer unusual designs or designs on sites with unusual constraints to the Planning Commission regardless of their compliance with all standards and guidelines.

1. Fences shall be constructed of wood or wrought iron.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA CITY COUNCIL ORDINANCE NO. 93-24

AN ORDINANCE DELETING SECTION 17.10.010.H OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE AND ADDING SECTION 17.08.070 TO THE MUNICIPAL CODE RELATED TO HISTORIC PRESERVATION AND AMENDING 17.18.110 - SPECIAL FINDINGS FOR DEMOLITION OF STRUCTURES

WHEREAS, the City has adopted an Historic Preservation Ordinance (Ordinance No. 93-03) establishing a process for designation and protection of Architectural, cultural, and historic resources; and

WHEREAS, codification of this ordinance revealed several inconsistencies with other provisions of the Municipal Code; and

WHEREAS, amendments are necessary to correct these inconsistencies and to ensure that all processes related to preservation are administered correctly; and

WHEREAS, the proposed amendments were reviewed and recommended for approval by the Historic Preservation Committee on 15 July 1993.

WHEREAS, the Planning Commission conducted a public hearing on the amendments and has determined that the ordinance is consistent with the General Plan.

NOW, THEREFORE, the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea does ordain as follows:

Section One. Delete Section 17.10.010.H of the Municipal Code in its entirety.

Section Two. Add Section 17.08.070 to the Municipal Code as follows:

17.08.070 Demolition of Structures. Except when required for the emergency protection of public health or safety as determined by the City Administrator in consultation with the Building Official, no permit authorizing the demolition of any structure within any district shall be issued until reviewed by the Planning Commission in accordance with the findings established in Section 17.18.110 and in Section 17.18.120 (if applicable).

If the structure or site has been designated as an architectural, cultural, historic resource in conformance with the provisions of Chapter 17.41, the process established in Section 17.41.050 also shall be followed. Permits authorizing the demolition of structures determined by the Planning Commission or the City Council not to be designated as architectural, cultural, historic resources may be issued by the Building Official. (Ord. 93-24 2, 1993).

Section Three. Amend Section 17.18.110 of the Municipal Code as follows:

17.18.110 Special Findings — Demolition of Structures. That, based on the public record and testimony presented at a public hearing, the structure is determined not to be a designated architectural, cultural or historic building as established in Chapter 17.41. If a structure is determined to be a designated resource by the Planning Commission, no demolition will be authorized unless one (1) of the following findings are made by the Planning Commission and applicable provisions of Chapter 17.41 related to demolitions have been implemented:

A. That the structure poses an immediate threat to health, safety and general welfare if it is not demolished;

B. That restoration of the structure is not feasible or practicable using current building codes including, but not limited to the Historic Building Code provisions of the Uniform Building Code of the State;

C. That no public or other funding is available for financing, renovation, relocation or purchase of the structure. (Ord. 93-24 3, 1993; Ord. 84-14 5(part), 1984; prior code 1308.2.9).

Section Four. Violations. Any person, firm or corporation, whether as principal or agent, employed or otherwise, violating or causing or permitting the violation of the provisions of this ordinance is guilty of an infraction. Any part of any building erected contrary to the provisions of this ordinance is hereby declared to be unlawful and a public nuisance and the City Attorney shall, upon order of the City Council, immediately commence action for the abatement or removal thereof. Should any person, firm or corporation violate the terms of this ordinance and any action is authorized by the City Council or the City Attorney or is in fact filed for said violations, no other action shall be taken on any application filed by or on behalf of said person, firm or corporation until the litigation has been resolved.

Section Five. Severability. If any part of this ordinance is found to be unenforceable, such finding shall not affect the enforceability of any other part.

Section Six. Effective Date. The ordinance shall take effect 30 days after final adoption.

PASSED AND ADOPTED by the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea this 5th day of October, 1993, by the following roll call vote:

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA CITY COUNCIL ORDINANCE NO. 93-23

AN ORDINANCE REPEALING ORDINANCE NOS. 85-34 AND 89-32 AMENDING THE CONDITIONS OF A REZONE AFFECTING PROPERTY LOCATED IN THE SERVICE COMMERCIAL LAND USE DISTRICT, BLOCK 49, LOTS 21, 22 AND THE NORTH 21° OF LOT 23

WHEREAS, the City Council adopted a rezone of the property located on the west side of Junipero Avenue between Fourth and Fifth Avenues (Block 49; Lots 21, 22 and part 23) from the R-4 District to the Service Commercial District on 5 November 1985; and

WHEREAS, the intent of this rezone was to allow the property owner to proceed with development under existing densities, rather than holding the project up while the City was in the process of preparing the R-4 Specific Plan and establishing more restrictive zoning standards; and

WHEREAS, the City Council established a condition on the rezone that restricted the property to residential development as proposed by the property owner at the time of the rezone; and that if the project was not built the property would revert to the standards applicable for developments in the R-4 District even though the property would continue to be zoned Service Commercial; and

WHEREAS, the project was never built as approved by the City, and therefore Ordinance No. 89-32 was adopted on 7 November 1989 applying the R-4 standards on the property for all future development of the parcel; and

WHEREAS, the property owner has submitted several unsuccessful applications over the past four years to obtain approval of a multiple family residential project on the parcel; and

WHEREAS, the Planning Commission reviewed a request for an Administrative Determination on 14 April 1993 filed by the property owner which would allow the parcel to be developed as a parking facility or with commercial land uses similar to other property located in the Service Commercial (SC) Land Use District; and

WHEREAS, the action taken by the Planning Commission was to direct staff to prepare a draft Ordinance which applied the standards for other property located in the Service Commercial (SC) Land Use District to the subject parcel and replaced a contract zone; and

WHEREAS, a proposed Negative Declaration was reviewed by the Planning Commission and a public hearing was held on the repeal of Ordinance No. 85-34 and 89-32 on 14 July 1993 that was duly noticed in the local newspaper; and

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. Ordinance Nos. 85-34 and 89-32 are repealed in their entirety and the standards applied to this property shall revert to those applicable to the Service Commercial (SC) Land Use District as described in the Carmel-by-the-Sea Municipal Code.

Section 2. Severability. If any part of this ordinance is found to be unenforceable, such finding shall not affect the enforceability of any other part.

Section 3. Effective Date. This ordinance shall take effect thirty (30) days after final adoption.

Sigourney stresses teamwork, camaraderie

when he was young.

"Water polo is something that really helped me with my esteem," he said. "It teaches about teamwork and friendship."

"I see that as one of its great values, the friendships made."

Sigourney lends his personal touch to most aspects of his coaching. He hand-crafts the team awards at the end of each season. And this season, as part of summer conditioning, he took a few of his players backpacking in the Sierra.

Sigourney said it took him a few years to feel comfortable at the Padre helm.

"I try to learn something each year," he said. "I used to get more upset at losses. What's important is the friendships and the working together."

Of course, Sigourney wants his Padres working together to be friendly winners. To that end, he would like a deeper pool at CHS, something he said would greatly benefit the Padre polo program.

"All our post-season play, all our big championships, are in deep water. It's a different style of play."

Sigourney said there are blueprints for plans to raise the deck level around the Padre pool, and he thinks it could be "relatively inexpensive."

In this project, he has invested more than his time and energy.

"I told the parents at our team meeting that I would donate my salary toward it for the next two years," Sigourney said.

Sigourney is a teacher who, until this year, taught elementary school full time in Salinas in addition to coaching at CHS. He recently inherited the family home in Carmel Valley and has taken time off to remodel it. He also has more time to coach, which Sigourney said he will do for at least two more years.

"I don't know beyond that," he said. "At some point, I'm going to have to stop because there are things I want to do that I can't with my fall devoted to water polo."

One example of such things is Sigourney's planned summer trip to trap lizards. He said it's mainly to see his friend, a researcher from Ohio University.

"It's fun to be with somebody who is that into one particular thing and know a lot about it," Sigourney said.

Around the Carmel High pool, a group of athletic amphibians feel the same way.

Nichols, Bonenfant, Allaire spur CHS win streak

"He has got a lot of potential."

But it is Bonenfant who has shown the early season strength, Sigourney noted.

"He's the hardest working guy I have. He's just working his tail off — working on his conditioning and he's really coming through."

Sigourney said junior Mike Allaire also has made strides recently, especially on defense. During the weekend tourney, Allaire also sparkled on offense as he tallied nine goals and three assists.

Only two seniors, Michael Landy and Brian Duarte, were returnees to the team this season. In Duarte, Sigourney may have unexpectedly found a goalie in last week's tournament. Duarte was pressed into service at the start of the tournament. He did so well, Sigourney said, that Duarte has earned a start in the next league game.

With about a month left on the competitive calendar, Sigourney is relieved to see his players reach for their potential. He hopes, however, the Padre players keep reaching.

"I expect more of them still. They still haven't reached their potential."

But nine straight wins is surely something to build on.

be known early they meant business. Senior Jeff Stiff scored the first Pirate touchdown on the team's first play from scrimmage. With under two minutes elapsed in the first quarter, Stiff ran 58 yards to give RLS a quick 7-0 advantage.

Three minutes later, after a failed punt attempt by the Spartans, the Pirates scored on a 3-yard run by junior Mike Prowell. After holding off Emery on a fourth down play at their own 48-yard line, RLS needed 10 plays to score another touchdown — a 13-yard pass to senior J.B. Williams from quarterback Tom Orradre.

That score was followed by a missed extra point attempt by Leland Felsenthal — remarkably his first of the season. After booting six more PATs on Saturday, Felsenthal has made good on 17 of his 18 attempts through the first five games, an incredible ratio for a high school placekicker.

RLS added four more scores in the second half: Orradre on runs of 1 and 2 yards, Prowell on a 19-yard run and Williams from 40 yards out.

■ Santa Catalina netters top RLS

SANTA CATALINA'S girls' tennis team proved its earlier season victory against perennial powerhouse Robert Louis Stevenson was no fluke as it posted a 6-1 win Tuesday, Oct. 12 in a Mission Trail Athletic match in Pebble Beach.

Singles winners for Santa Catalina — now 8-0 in league, 11-0 overall — were Ashlee Ferlito, Lisa Walgenbach and Margaret Benner, all coming in straight sets. Abiah Folger-Adrienne Tunney, Caroline Benner-Nicole Heyermann and Sonia Sparolini-Marisa Adams scored victories in doubles play.

RLS' lone victory came in the No. 1 singles matchup as Lindsay Colker ousted Marisa MacLennan in three tight sets.
